Making Aid Work Innovative Approaches For Africa At The Turn Of The Century:

Making Aid Work Peter H. Koehn, Olatunde J. C. B. Ojo, 1999 Making Aid Work brings together a variety of creative approaches to successfully utilizing aid in Sub Saharan Africa in the twenty first century The contributors use Goran Hyden s autonomous development fund model as an inspiration for the direction of their arguments The approaches seek a means of promoting the genuine and effective partnerships necessary for accomplishing short term and long term objectives in Africa The essays focus on the development of the managerial capacity and administrative culture that must take place before the development fund model can be successful A commitment to promote scientific problem solving at all levels of society and education would be needed to support innovative management training methodologies and develop strategies for coping with financial pressures The contributors hope to provide guidelines with the potential for broad impact and lasting benefits that partnerships in North and South Africa can confer

Sorting Africa's Developmental Puzzle Almaz Zewde, 2010-06-02
Sorting Africa s Development Puzzle The Participatory Social Learning Theory as an Alternative Approach is a comprehensive exploration of why Africa has not managed to achieve a sustainable and self regenerating development over the past half century of effort The work situates the problems of Africa s persistent underdevelopment in the practices employed by national political elites donors and lenders to African development that played roles in determinant policy and planning Unlike many newly developed countries and regions and contrary to the historical experiences of developed countries where ordinary people were full stakeholders and drivers of development Africa s development has been top down expert and capital driven mechanical and typically externally designed Ordinary Africans were made marginal to development This approach to Africa s development was devoid of building the people and their institutions as the legitimate means of development The entrusting of Africa s development to local and international elites to the exclusion of the people from decision making and full participation has led to grievous deficits in the formation of human and social capital and legitimate economic social and political institutions for development The book offers a studied alternative that can positively change Africa s development direction The Participatory Social Learning Approach The philosophical theoretical historical and heuristic origins of this alternative are offered in detail within this book

Africa's Stalled Development David K. Leonard, Scott Straus, 2003 This thoughtful discussion probes the international roots of Africa s civil conflicts and lackluster economies Analyzing an unwitting system that creates a set of incentives inimical to development the authors offer a new way of thinking about Africa s development dilemmas and the policy options for addressing them Weak states aid dependence crushing debt and enclave economies argue the authors create disincentives for long term economic growth and even peace The nature of Africa s interaction with the international system often supports these negative features thus the remedy must come from a radical restructuring of that relationship Africa s Stalled Development heeds that call by presenting specific and innovative prescriptions for change that are sure to stimulate a much needed debate Publisher
