Loving Creation Gary Chartier, 2022-09-27 Is it true that all we need is love Does love capture the essence of Christian ethics Does a love centered ethic need to be impartial in a way that leaves no room at ground level for relationships and projects What is the place of well being in an ethic of love Loving Creation The Task of Moral Life seeks to answer these questions by showing how a love ethic and an ethic of creation are not at odds but rather reinforce each other Gary Chartier articulates a love centered creation ethic or a creation centered love ethic and applies it to such issues as sex economic life love for enemies and political order In the book Chartier offers a powerful alternative both to natural law theories that seem to lose sight of the welfare of actual people and to the accounts of Christian love that embrace an alienating impartiality He develops an understanding of Christian love as focused on creation that can contribute effectively to enriching both social practices and personal lives Loving Creation is unabashedly theological But the theological considerations it adduces are ones that will allow Christians to engage in the public sphere with adherents of other religious traditions and of none It is a contribution not only to theological understanding but also to personal moral reflection to church practice and to Christian participation in public life Value Incommensurability Henrik

Evolution and the Capacity for Commitment Randolph Nesse, 2001-11-29 Commitment is at the core of social life The social fabric is woven from promises and threats that are not always immediately advantageous to the parties involved Many commitments such as signing a contract are fairly straightforward deals in which both parties agree to give up certain options Other commitments such as the promise of life long love or a threat of murder are based on more intangible factors such as human emotions In Evolution and the Capacity for Commitment distinguished researchers from the fields of economics psychology ethology anthropology philosophy medicine and law offer a rich variety of perspectives on the nature of commitment and question whether the capacity for making assessing and keeping commitments has been shaped by natural selection Game theorists have shown that players who use commitment strategies by learning to convey subjective offers and to gauge commitments others are willing to make achieve greater success than those who rationally calculate every move for immediate reward Evolution and the Capacity for Commitment includes contributions from some of the pioneering students of commitment Their elegant analyses highlight the critical role of reputation building and show the importance of investigating how people can believe that others would carry out promises or threats that go against their own self interest Other contributors provide real world examples of commitment across cultures and suggest the evolutionary origins of the capacity for commitment Perhaps nowhere is the importance of commitment and reputation more evident than in the institutions of law medicine and religion Essays by professionals in each field explore why many practitioners remain largely ethical in spite of manifest opportunities for client exploitation Finally Evolution and the Capacity for Commitment turns to leading animal behavior experts to explore whether non humans also use commitment strategies most notably through the transmission of threats or signs of non aggression Such examples illustrate how such tendencies in humans may have evolved Viewed as an adaptive evolutionary strategy commitment offers enormous potential for explaining complex and irrational emotional behaviors within a biological framework Evolution and the Capacity for Commitment presents compelling evidence for this view and offers a potential bridge across the current rift between biology and the social sciences A Volume in the Russell Sage Foundation Series on Trust
