Making Human Rights Work Globally Anthony Woodiwiss, 2012-09-10 This book is one of the first studies in the new field of the sociology of human rights and it centres its analysis on labour rights Such rights are of critical importance in this field work being the defining aspect of many peoples lives and a central concern of sociology Making Sovereign Financing and Human Rights Work Juan Pablo Bohoslavsky, Jernej Letnar Cernic, 2014-12-01 Poor public resource management and the global financial crisis curbing fundamental fiscal space millions thrown into poverty and authoritarian regimes running successful criminal campaigns with the help of financial assistance are all phenomena that raise fundamental questions around finance and human rights They also highlight the urgent need for more systematic and robust legal and economic thinking about sovereign finance and human rights This edited collection aims to contribute to filling this gap by introducing novel legal theories and analyses of the links between sovereign debt and human rights from a variety of perspectives These chapters include studies of financial complicity UN sanctions ethics transitional justice criminal law insolvency proceedings millennium development goals global financial architecture corporations extraterritoriality state of necessity sovereign wealth and hedge funds project financing state responsibility international financial institutions the right to development UN initiatives litigation as well as case studies from Africa Asia and Latin America These chapters are then theorised by the editors in an introductory chapter In July 2012 the UN Human Rights Council finally issued its own guidelines on foreign debt and human rights yet much remains to be done to promote better understanding of the legal and economic implications of the interface between finance and human rights This book will contribute to that understanding as well as help practitioners in their everyday work The authors include world renowned lawyers and economists experienced practitioners and officials from international organisations Making Human Rights a Reality Emilie M. Hafner-Burton, 2013-03-21 In the last six decades one of the most striking developments in international law is the emergence of a massive body of legal norms and procedures aimed at protecting human rights In many countries though there is little relationship between international law and the actual protection of human rights on the ground Making Human Rights a Reality takes a fresh look at why it s been so hard for international law to have much impact in parts of the world where human rights are most at risk Emilie Hafner Burton argues that more progress is possible if human rights promoters work strategically with the group of states that have dedicated resources to human rights protection These human rights stewards can focus their resources on places where the tangible benefits to human rights are greatest Success will require setting priorities as well as engaging local stakeholders such as nongovernmental organizations and national human rights institutions To date promoters of international human rights law have relied too heavily on setting universal goals and procedures and not enough on assessing what actually works and setting priorities Hafner Burton illustrates how with a different strategy human rights stewards can make international law more effective and also safeguard human rights for more of the world population Making Human Dignity Central to International Human Rights Law Matthew McManus, 2019-09-15 In recent years there has been an explosion of writing on the topic of human dignity across a plethora of different academic disciplines Despite this explosion of interest there is one group critical legal scholars that has devoted little if any attention to human dignity This book argues that these scholars should attend to human dignity a concept rich enough to support a whole range of progressive ambitions particularly in the field of international law It synthesizes certain liberal arguments about the good of self authorship with the critical legal philosophy of Roberto Unger and the capabilities approach to agency of Amartya Sen to formulate a unique conception of human dignity The author argues how human dignity flows from an individual s capacity for self authorship as defined by the set of expressive capabilities s he possesses and the book demonstrates how this conception can enrich our understanding of international human rights law by making the amplification of human dignity its fundamental orientation Human Rights

The Oxford Handbook of History and International Relations Mlada Bukovansky, Edward Keene, Christian Reus-Smit, Maja Spanu, 2023-08-03 Historical approaches to the study of world politics have always been a major part of the academic discipline of International Relations and there has recently been a resurgence of scholarly interest in this area This Oxford Handbook examines the past and present of the intersection between history and IR and looks to the future by laying out new questions and directions for research Seeking to transcend well worn disciplinary debates between historians and IR scholars the Handbook asks authors from both fields to engage with the central themes of modernity and granularity Modernity is one of the basic organising categories of speculation about continuity and discontinuity in the history of world politics but one that is increasingly questioned for privileging one kind of experience and marginalizing others The theme of granularity highlights the importance of how decisions about the scale and scope of historical research in IR shape what can be seen and how one sees it Together these themes provide points of affinity across the wide range of topics and approaches presented here The Handbook is organized into four parts The first Readings gives a state of the art analysis of numerous aspects of the disciplinary encounter between historians and IR theorists Thereafter sections on Practices Locales and Moments offer a wide variety of perspectives from the longue dur e to the ephemeral individual moment and challenge many conventional ways of defining the contexts of historical enquiry about international relations Contributors come from a range of academic backgrounds and present a diverse array of methodological and philosophical ideas as well as their various historical interests The Oxford Handbooks of International Relations is a twelve volume set of reference books offering authoritative and innovative engagements with the principal sub fields of International Relations The series as a whole is under the General Editorship of Christian Reus Smit of the University of Queensland and Duncan Snidal of the University of Oxford with each volume edited by specialists in the field The series both surveys the broad terrain of International Relations scholarship and reshapes it pushing each sub field in challenging new directions Following the example of Reus Smit and Snidal s original Oxford Handbook of International Relations each volume is organized around a strong central thematic by scholars drawn from different perspectives reading its sub field in an entirely new way and pushing scholarship in challenging new directions

Reconstructing Human Rights Joe Hoover, 2016-05-27 We live in a human rights world The language of human rights claims and numerous human rights institutions shape almost all aspects of our political lives yet we struggle to know how to judge this development. Scholars give us good reason to be both supportive and sceptical of the universal claims that human rights enable, alternatively suggesting that they are pillars of cross cultural understanding of justice or the ideological justification of a violent and exclusionary global order. All too often however our evaluations of our human rights world are not based on sustained consideration of their complex ambiguous and often contradictory consequences. Reconstructing Human Rights argues that human rights are only as good as the ends they help us realise. We must attend to what ethical principles actually do in the world to know their value. So for human rights we need to consider how the identity of humanity and the concept of rights shape our thinking, structure our political activity and contribute to social change. Reconstructing Human Rights defends human rights as a tool that should enable us to challenge political authority and established constellations of political membership by making new claims possible. Human rights mobilise the identity of humanity to make demands upon the terms of legitimate authority and challenges established political memberships. In this work it is argued that this tool should be guided by a democratising ethos in pursuit of that enables claims for more democratic forms of politics and more inclusive political communities. While this work directly engages with debates about human rights in philosophy and political theory in connecting our evaluations of the value of human rights to their worldly consequences it will also be of interest to scholars considering human rights across disciplines including Law, Sociology and Anthropology.

Routledge Handbook of International Law and the Humanities Shane Chalmers, Sundhya Pahuja, 2021-05-19. This Handbook brings together 40 of the world's leading scholars and rising stars who study international law from disciplines in the humanities from history to literature, philosophy to the visual arts to showcase the distinctive contributions that this field has made to the study of international law over the past two decades. Including authors from Australia, Canada, Europe, India, South Africa, the UK and the USA, all the contributors engage the question of what is distinctive and critical about the work that has been done and that continues to be done in the field of international law and the humanities. For many of these authors, answering this question involves reflecting on the work they themselves have been contributing to this path-breaking field since its inception at the end of the twentieth century. For others it involves offering models of the new work they are carrying out or else reflecting on the future directions of a field that has now taken its place as one of the most important sites for the study of international legal practice and theory. Each of the book's six parts foregrounds a different element or cluster of elements of international law and the humanities from an attention to the office, conduct and training of the jurist and jurisprudent, Part 1 to scholarly craft and technique, Part 2 to questions of authority and responsibility, Part 3 history and historiography, Part 4 plurality and community, Part 5 as well as the challenge of thinking and rethinking international legal concepts for our times, Part 6. Outlining new ways of imagining and doing international law at a moment in time when original critical thought and practice is more necessary than ever, this Handbook will be essential for scholars, students and practitioners in international law international relations as well as in law and the humanities more generally
