Decision Management J. Frank Yates, 2003-02-03 Why do the people in some companies continually dazzle us with their brilliant decisions while those in others make one blunder after another Do they understand their businesses better Are they just plain smarter Or is it all a matter of luck The answer says J Frank Yates is none of the above The real key rarely recognized is how the leaders manage the company's decision processes the leaders' decision management practices Drawing on his thirty years of research and experience as well as scholarship from psychology economics statistics strategy medicine and other fields to explain the fundamental nature of business decision problems Yates highlights the ten cardinal decision issues crucial to managing the decision making process and ultimately better company decisions He covers problems ranging from recognizing whether a decision is actually called for to assuring that a preferred course of action will be implemented He shows how solid decisions result when managers ensure that deciders resolve every cardinal issue effectively for every decision problem facing the company He also reveals how conversely chronically poor decisions are traceable to managers allowing or even creating conditions that encourage deciders to fall short in how they address at least one of those critical issues

Structured Decision Making Robin Gregory, Lee Failing, Michael Harstone, Graham Long, Tim McDaniels, Dan Ohlson, 2012-02-17 This book outlines the creative process of making environmental management decisions using the approach called Structured Decision Making It is a short introductory guide to this popular form of decision making and is aimed at environmental managers and scientists This is a distinctly pragmatic label given to ways for helping individuals and groups think through tough multidimensional choices characterized by uncertain science diverse stakeholders and difficult tradeoffs This is the everyday reality of environmental management yet many important decisions currently are made on an ad hoc basis that lacks a solid value based foundation ignores key information and results in selection of an inferior alternative Making progress in a way that is rigorous inclusive defensible and transparent requires combining analytical methods drawn from the decision sciences and applied ecology with deliberative insights from cognitive psychology facilitation and negotiation The authors review key methods and discuss case study examples based in their experiences in communities boardrooms and stakeholder meetings The goal of this book is to lay out a compelling guide that will change how you think about making environmental decisions Visit www.wiley.com/go/gregory to access the figures and tables from the book

Rational Decisions in Organisations Frédéric Adam,Dorota Kuchta,Stanisław Stanek,2022-05-30 Managers in organisations must make rational decisions Rational decision making is the opposite of intuitive decision making It is a strict procedure utilising objective knowledge and logic It involves identifying the problem to solve gathering facts identifying options and outcomes analysing them considering all the relationships and selecting the decision Rational decision making requires support methods and software tools The identification of the problem to solve needs methods that would measure and evaluate the current situation Identification and evaluation of options and analysis of the available possibilities involves analysis and optimisation methods Incorporating intuition into rational decision making needs adequate methods that would translate ideas or observed behaviours into hard data Communication observation and opinions recording is hardly possible today without adequate software Information and data that form the input intermediate variables and the output must be stored managed and made accessible in a user friendly manner

Rational Decisions in Organisations Theoretical and Practical Aspects presents selected recent developments in the support of the widely understood rational decision making in organisations illustrated through case studies The book shows not only the variety of perspectives involved in decision making but also the variety of domains where rational decision support systems are needed The case studies present decision making by medical doctors students and managers of various universities IT project teams construction companies banks and small and large manufacturing companies Covering the richness of relationships in which the decisions should and must be taken the book illustrates how modern organisations operate in chains and networks they have multiple responsibilities including social legal business and ethical duties Nowadays managers in organisations can make transparent decisions and consider a multitude of stakeholders and their diverse features incorporating diverse criteria using multiple types and drivers of information and decision making patterns and referring to numerous lessons learned As the book makes clear the marriage of theoretical ideas with the possibilities offered by technology can make the decisions in organisations more rational and at the same time more human
