Marijuana Use And Criminal Sanctions:

Marijuana Use and Criminal Sanctions Richard J. Bonnie, 1980 The Limits of the Criminal Sanction Herbert Packer, 1968-06-01 The argument of this book begins with the proposition that there are certain things we must understand about the criminal sanction before we can begin to talk sensibly about its limits First we need to ask some questions about the rationale of the criminal sanction What are we trying to do by defining conduct as criminal and punishing people who commit crimes To what extent are we justified in thinking that we can or ought to do what we are trying to do Is it possible to construct an acceptable rationale for the criminal sanction enabling us to deal with the argument that it is itself an unethical use of social power And if it is possible what implications does that rationale have for the kind of conceptual creature that the criminal law is Questions of this order make up Part I of the book which is essentially an extended essay on the nature and justification of the criminal sanction We also need to understand so the argument continues the characteristic processes through which the criminal sanction operates What do the rules of the game tell us about what the state may and may not do to apprehend charge convict and dispose of persons suspected of committing crimes Here too there is great controversy between two groups who have quite different views or models of what the criminal process is all about There are people who see the criminal process as essentially devoted to values of efficiency in the suppression of crime There are others who see those values as subordinate to the protection of the individual in his confrontation with the state A severe struggle over these conflicting values has been going on in the courts of this country for the last decade or more How that struggle is to be resolved is a second major consideration that we need to take into account before tackling the question of the limits of the criminal sanction These problems of process are examined in Part II Part III deals directly with the central problem of defining criteria for limiting the reach of the criminal sanction Given the constraints of rationale and process examined in Parts I and II it argues that we have over relied on the criminal sanction and that we had better start thinking in a systematic way about how to adjust our commitments to our capacities both moral and operational Marijuana Decriminalization United States. Drugs, Crime, and Justice Steven Belenko, Cassia Spohn, 2014-10-10 Drugs Crime and Justice is an engaging yet comprehensive analysis of the interrelationships among drug use abuse crime and justice The first four chapters introduce readers to the interrelationships between drugs and crime while the second later chapters provide readers with an overview of historical and contemporary policies as well as a comprehensive review of research on policing drug markets arresting drug offenders and prosecution and sentencing of drug offenders in state and federal courts The authors also examine and assess the impact of the war on drugs and conclude with a discussion of recent policy changes such as drug courts and reform repeal of mandatory minimum sentences and an examination of new and emerging drug policies in the 21st Century
