Animals and Tourism Kevin Markwell, 2015-05-01. This book critically examines the many ways in which tourism and animals intersect whether as tourist attractions wildlife conservation tools as travel companions or as meat to be eaten. It aims to make a meaningful contribution to the growing body of knowledge concerning the relationships between animals tourists and the tourism industry. The chapters are organised into three themes: ethics and welfare conflict contradiction and contestation and shifting relationships. Theoretically informed and empirically rich the chapters examine topics such as whale watching animal performances the objectification and commodification of animals and stakeholder conflict among a range of others. It is hoped that the book will help to highlight key research questions and stimulate other researchers and students to reflect critically on the place of animals within tourism spaces experiences practices and structures.

Taking Tourism to the Limits Michelle Aicken, Stephen J. Page, Chris Ryan, 2006-08-11. The concept of margins and limits is often referred to within the tourism academic literature and includes subjects as diverse as carrying capacities peripheral economies technological advancement adventure tourism dark tourism and socially marginalized communities. After identifying a number of ways in which limits might be defined Taking Tourism to the Limits explores concepts and challenges facing contemporary tourism in five main sections namely in tourism planning and management nature based tourism dark tourism adventure and sport tourism and the accommodation industry. Drawing upon case studies current research and conceptualizations these different facets of the limits are each introduced by the editors with commentaries that seek to identify themes and current practice and thinking in the respective domains. The picture that emerges is of an industry that reinvents itself in response to changing market parameters even while core issues of stakeholder equities and political processes remain problematic International in scale the book links with its companion piece Indigenous Tourism the commodification and management of culture also published by Elsevier as an outcome of the very highly successful conference Taking Tourism to the Limits hosted by the University of Waikato Department of Tourism Management in 2003

Marine Ecotourism Brian Garrod, Julie Wilson, 2003-01-03 Marine ecotourism is a major growth area within ecotourism itself a rapidly expanding area within tourism as a whole The activity has been attracting increasing attention both from the popular media and from professionals and academics with an interest in tourism's potential to contribute to sustainable development. However, there is a growing consensus that far too often the term has been used merely as a tool for capitalising on the good intentions of tourists without the industry itself having to make fundamental changes to their products or to the way they go about their operations. This has often been to the detriment of local environments, economies and host communities. Yet the ideal of ecotourism, as it is properly understood, is to present local communities with a sustainable development alternative, one that works to the benefit of local ecosystems, local economies and local people. The purpose of the first section of this book is therefore to introduce the concept of marine ecotourism and to draw out some of the key issues involved in ensuring that marine ecotourism is developed in a genuinely sustainable manner. The second section then discusses some practical experiences of planning and managing marine ecotourism from around the world, identifying common problems and discussing what might constitute good practice in addressing those problems.
