Barr, 2005-01-01 Labor Markets and Social Policy in Central and Eastern Europe summarises social policy reform during the transition and EU accession and analyses the social policy challenges which continue to face both old and new member states Specifically the book amplifies two sets of arguments First social policy under communism was in important respects well suited to the old order and precisely for that reason was systematically badly suited to a market economy Strategic reform directions thus followed from the nature of the transition process and from constraints imposed by EU accession Secondly successful accession is not the end of the story economic and social trends over the past 50 years are creating strains for social policy which all countries old and new members will have to face This book will be of interest to readers interested in social policy particularly those with an interest in the process of post communist transition in EU accession and in future social policy challenges for the wider Europe It should be of interest to academics in departments of economics social policy and political science and to policy makers including government advisers and civil servants

Trends in Health Status, Services, and Finance: Statistical annex Ellen Goldstein, 1996-01-01 Education systems in more than 50 countries most of them in the industrial world have in recent years shown an interest in obtaining information on what their students have actually learned as a result of their educational experiences This interest has been manifested either by developing national procedures to assess students achievements or by participating in international studies of student achievement This book provides introductory information on ways of assessing the learning outcomes of education systems It considers the nature choice and use of indicators and describes numerous approaches to assessing learning outcomes in selected industrial countries the United States and the United Kingdom and developing countries Chile Colombia Mauritius Namibia and Thailand The authors also review systems of comparative international assessment and debate whether developing countries should participate in them The book contains boxes and tables an appendix features a national assessment checklist

Medicinal Plants John Lambert, Jitendra Srivastava, Noel Vietmeyer, 1997-01-01 The complex and important relationship between public expenditure and economic performance has been the subject of numerous econometric studies But the studies remain inconclusive some results have shown positive relationships while others are negative Thus there is no conventional wisdom backed by statistical evidence on this relationship nor is there any sort of clear theoretical underpinning that explains how the aggregate of government spending acts on the growth of total output This book studies the role of public expenditures in a noneconometric way by examining a number of specific instances of these expenditures and their direct effect on economic performance Specifically the authors presents scenarios from Botswana Ghana Guinea Kenya and Zambia and ask a series of questions to identify and illuminate the impact of these instances of public expenditure on a number of variables that help measure economic performance These examples are then used to make generalizations about the relationship between public spending and economic performance

Health Care Reform Around the World Andrew Twaddle, 2002-06-30 Health care reforms around the world from Europe and North America to Africa Latin America and Asia seem to all be market oriented reforms driven by international business interests and right wing political parties There seems to be a sudden and broad concern with the efficiency of medical care with the assertion that democratically or professionally run systems are inherently inefficient Far less concern is evident for the more traditional values held regarding medical care effectiveness or quality and equity The fact is that we have little good cross national research that systematically addresses the reform issue This book addresses that problem and attempts to look at health care reforms in a number of countries representing as wide a spectrum as possible and using a common conceptual framework that allows for comparable information to be gathered and presented on each despite differing levels of socio economic development The authors agreed on a set of models that were thought to provide reasonable guidance in answering the questions of the source of pressures for reform the alternative modes of organization that have been found in the world in recent years and the direction of change among those alternatives

The Role of Government and the Private Sector in Fighting Poverty George Psacharopoulos, Xuan Nguyen Nguyen, 1997-01-01 Annotation World Bank Technical Paper No 346 Although private sector expansion may relieve governments from certain tasks it also imposes new responsibilities This paper examines the relative roles of the private and public sectors in the implementation of a two track strategy for poverty reduction The first track requires sustained broad based economic growth that makes efficient use of labor the main asset owned by the poor The second promotes investment in people or human resources by ensuring basic social services that are accessible to the poor Individual chapters examine social safety nets and issues in education health population and nutrition Sector Investment Programs in Africa Stephen P. Jones,1997-01-01 South Asia has made much progress in deregulation and liberalization in the 1990s but it still remains one of the least integrated regions in the world However this general trend masks wide disparities among South Asian nations the larger economies tend to be more highly protected with low import penetration rates while the smaller economies are relatively more open If the current reform program continues the benefits of liberalization will translate into higher growth This report reviews the regions economic performance from an international perspective and the steps taken to increase integration especially in terms of financial integration increased foreign direct investment portfolio and capital flows and regional integration intra regional trade regional arrangements Chapters also discuss the economic outlook for the region and prospects for South Asian exports such as textiles and clothing
