This book was originally published as two special issues of the Journal of Strategic Marketing Market Relations and the Competitive Process J. Stanley Metcalfe, Alan Warde, 2002 Competitiveness Strategy in Developing Countries

Ganeshan Wignaraja, 2003-10-04 Globalization and structural adjustment offer many opportunities for export orientated industrialization in developing economies As a group competitiveness in the developing countries has improved but while East Asian economies have had rapid export growth and technological upgrades South Asian and African economies have lagged behind Old structures institutions behavioural patterns and public policies are ill adapted to deal with the challenges posed by technological change and economic liberalization Consequently there is an urgent need for change in government and private sector attitudes and strategies This volume seeks to generalise the lessons across developing country and enterprise cases and sheds light on which trade and industrial strategies and instruments work best and which do not work in relation to manufacturing competitiveness

The Aesthetic Economy of Fashion Joanne Entwistle, 2009-11-15 Fashion is bound up with promoting the new concerned with constantly changing aesthetics The favored styles or looks of a season arise out of the work of a vast range of different actors who collectively produce select distribute and promote the new ideals before moving on next season If fashion is defined in part by the incessant requirement to be new this requirement means aesthetic qualities are always in motion and therefore unstable How then are fashionable commodities stabilized long enough for them to be calculated i e selected distributed and sold by those critically placed inside the fashion system Since there are few studies that actually examine the work that goes on inside the world of fashion we know little about these processes Fashion and the Cultural Economy addresses this gap in our knowledge by examining how aesthetic products are defined distributed and valued It focuses attention on the work of some of the market agents in particular model agents or bookers and fashion buyers shaping the aesthetics inside their markets In analyzing their work Entwistle develops a theoretical framework for understanding the distinctive features of aesthetic marketplaces and the aesthetic calculations within them

Markets William A. Jackson, 2019-04-18 Defining markets has never been an easy task Despite their importance for economic theory and practice they are hard to pin down as a concept and economists have tended to adopt simplified axiomatic models or rely on piecemeal case studies This book argues that an extended range of theory social as well as economic can provide a better foundation for the portrayal of markets The book first looks at the definition of markets their inadequate treatment in orthodox economic theory and their historical background in the pre capitalist and capitalist eras It then assesses various alternatives to orthodox theory categorised as social cultural structural functional and ethical approaches Among the alternatives considered are institutionalist accounts Marxian views network models performativity arguments field theories Austrian views and ethical notions of fair trade A key finding of the book is that these diverse approaches valuable as they are could present a more effective challenge to orthodoxy if they were less disparate Possibilities are investigated for a more unified theoretical alternative to orthodoxy Unlike most studies of markets this book adopts a fully interdisciplinary viewpoint expressed in accessible non technical language Ideas are brought together from heterodox economics social theory critical realism as well as other social sciences such as sociology anthropology and geography Anybody seeking a broad critical survey of the theoretical analysis of markets will find this book useful and it will be of great interest to economists social scientists students and policy makers

The Myth of the Global Market Giulio Palermo, 2024-11-06

Capitalism is often held to be the best of all possible worlds or even the only possible world in which the market is underpinned by the highest principles of rationality efficiency and compatibility with democracy. These truths are backed up by economists a group who present themselves as impartial experts capable of operating independently of ideology or political intrusion. This book questions these scientific truths. It discusses the ideological foundations of neoliberalism and the value judgements often kept implicit in economic theory. It analyses the claims of the key pillars of neoliberal economics the neoclassical and Austrian schools of economic thought and the myths which they propagate about markets It is shown that there is a deep division between the theoretical market the fair market the free market the market of equal opportunities the market as producer of wealth the market as a forum for discovering and sharing information and the reality This is not a simple problem of realism The problem also concerns the perfect market idealized by these theories which is subjected to criticism through a process of demystification that reveals the true ideological content hidden behind the market myths There have been various attempts by heterodox schools of economics to move beyond this flawed view of the market However these have struggled to gain mainstream attention because of the cultural and political dominance of the neoliberal mindset which is claimed to be objective and neutral Ultimately the book argues that neoliberalism needs to be countered with an alternative based on a progressive decommodification of social relations to reduce the real and imagined significance of the market This book is essential reading for those interested in Marxist political economy heterodox economics and critiques of neoliberalism capitalism and markets The Butterfly Effect in Competitive Markets . Rajagopal,2015-03-04 This book provides an introduction to the concept of entrepreneurship and entrepreneurial business management It covers many elements of the entrepreneurial management discipline including choosing a business organizing financing marketing developing an offering that the market will value and growing the business in all its dimensions
