

Making a Difference

An old man walking along the beach came upon a child sifting through debris left by the night's tide. Every so often, he would pick up a starfish and toss it back to the sea.

The old man asked him the purpose of his efforts.

"The tide has washed the starfish onto the beach. They will die unless I throw them back."

The old man looked around at the miles of beach.

"There are more starfish than you can ever save. You cannot make a difference."

The child bent to pick up another starfish and sent it back to the ocean. Then he looked up at the old man, smiled and replied, "I can make a difference to this one."

You make a difference!

Making All the Difference Martha Minow, 2016-10-01 Should a court order medical treatment for a severely disabled newborn in the face of the parents refusal to authorize it How does the law apply to a neighborhood that objects to a group home for developmentally disabled people Does equality mean treating everyone the same even if such treatment affects some people adversely Does a state requirement of employee maternity leave serve or violate the commitment to gender equality Martha Minow takes a hard look at the way our legal system functions in dealing with people on the basis of race gender age ethnicity religion and disability Minow confronts a variety of dilemmas of difference resulting from contradictory legal strategies strategies that attempt to correct inequalities by sometimes recognizing and sometimes ignoring differences Exploring the historical sources of ideas about difference she offers challenging alternative ways of conceiving of traits that legal and social institutions have come to regard as different She argues in effect for a constructed jurisprudence based on the ability to recognize and work with perceptible forms of difference Minow is passionately interested in the people different people whose lives are regularly mis shaped and mis directed by the legal system s ways of handling them Drawing on literary and feminist theories and the insights of anthropology and social history she identifies the unstated assumptions that tend to regenerate discrimination through the very reforms that are supposed to eliminate it Education for handicapped children conflicts between job and family responsibilities bilingual education Native American land claims these are among the concrete problems she discusses from a fresh angle of vision Minow firmly rejects the prevailing conception of the self that she believes underlies legal doctrine a self seen as either separate and autonomous or else disabled and incompetent in some way In contrast she regards the self as being realized through connection capable of shaping an identity only in relationship to other people She shifts the focus for problem solving from the different person to the relationships that construct that difference and she proposes an analysis that can turn difference from a basis of stigma and a rationale for unequal treatment into a point of human connection The meanings of many differences can change when people locate and revise their relationships to difference she asserts The student in a wheelchair becomes less different when the building designed without him in mind is altered to permit his access Her book evaluates contemporary legal theories and reformulates legal rights for women children persons with disabilities and others historically identified as different Here is a powerful voice for change speaking to issues that permeate our daily lives and form a central part of the work of law By illuminating the many ways in which people differ from one another this book shows how lawyers political theorist teachers parents students every one of us can make all the difference Managing to Make a Difference Larry Sternberg, Kim Turnage, 2017-04-10 A practical real world training manual for mid level management Managing to Make a Difference presents a leadership guide for those in the middle The C suite has a wealth of resources for leadership guidance but middle managers face a quandary often given little guidance on how to excel they are also under enormous pressure to do a variety of things other than lead This book provides much needed tools and techniques for building a high performing team without letting your other duties suffer Organized around a coherent philosophy and based on solid research the discussion offers a roadmap to engagement talent development and excellence in management From difficult situations and organizational challenges to everyday motivation and inspiration these techniques help middle managers achieve the goals of their organization while empowering their workers to achieve their own Talent development is probably not your full time job yet it drives the engagement that results in high performance This book shows you how to hit the sweet spot of middle management with a host of tools and strategies to help you help your team shine Motivate inspire and lead your team with confidence Manage through challenges and overcome obstacles Develop key talent and maintain high engagement Adopt practical management tools based on substantiated research Most organizations direct the majority of their development resources to the C suite but still expect their mid level managers to attract engage retain and develop talent but successfully juggling everyday duties while maintaining team performance and leading around roadblocks leaves little room for management planning Managing to Make a Difference offers the solution in the form of tools techniques and practical strategy for a high performing team Euclid's Elements of Plane Geometry [Books 1-6]; with copious notes ... To which is subjoined a brief introduction to plane trigonometry. With a trigonometrical table. By J. Walker ,1827 Parents Make the Difference Susan Voorhees, 2014-05-14 Reading to your children has been recommended to parents of young children for decades by literacy experts The act of shared book reading can promote academic language and literacy development this is grounded in research Not all shared book reading however is equally effective In Parents Make the Difference Nourishing Literacy Development through Shared book Reading Susan Voorhees guides parents to conduct enjoyable and productive book reading interactions with their young children Parents will be informed about language and literacy learning in the early years and how to best engage in before during and after shared book reading activities While this book was written as an invitation to parents teachers will also find it to be informative in guiding them to establish a supportive climate for sound developmentally appropriate literacy teaching practices It is the responsibility of all shareholders to nourish the literacy
