Globalizing Local Policing David Sausdal, 2023-03-24 The book examines the globalization of local policing through an ethnographic study of the Danish Police Where many studies are looking into how larger inter or transnational policing bodies and policies are changing the world of policing few have gauged how local public police forces are also globalizing This book provides some unique insights into this under researched process Specifically it describes the daily practices and perceptions of two Danish detective task forces tasked with the investigation of organized property crimes committed by foreign nationals In the book readers get to see how the detectives think and work including the many efforts they make in attuning their daily work to a more global reality More so readers get to see how the detectives fail and the many frustrations and concerns that such changes include One the one hand Danish detectives very much understand the need to de localize and develop their work On the other hand they feel that many of these changes are in conflict with what they find to be real and rewarding police work For people interested in contemporary issues of policing the book thus points to a puzzling paradox Globalization might be making for more mobile and even mobilised local forces more technologically driven and collaborating with international partners However these very processes are also making local officers feel more disarmed than ever Ultimately the book describes why that is its consequences as well as how to imagine a form of global policing more in tune with its local actors

The Persistent Prison? Maeve Winifred McMahon, 1992-01-01 The Prison system is widely believed to be an immutable element of contemporary society Many criminologists and sociologists of deviance believe that decarceration movements have failed to yield progressive reform and that feasible alternatives to the prison system do not exist Maeve McMahon challenges these views Reconstructing the emergence of critical perspectives on decarceration she examines analytical and empirical problems in the research She also points out how indicators of community programs and other penalties serving as alternatives to prison have typically been overshadowed through critical focus on their effects in widening the net of control McMahon presents a detailed analysis of decreasing imprisonment and of the part played by alternatives in this during the postwar period in Ontario Drawing from extensive documentary research and from interviews with former correctional officials she charts the changing climates of opinions and socio economic factors which facilitated decarceration By situating her analysis in the context of theoretical and political arguments about the possibility of decarceration McMahon provides in her work a stimulus to the development of progressive penal politics not just in Canada but in all western countries
