Impediments of Feminist Monolithism Rosalyn Mutia, 2021-02-01 This book reads mid twentieth century poetry by British American and Sub Saharan women to postulate the desirability and possibility of feminist monolithism It shows that there is a remarkable consistency in the themes and aesthetic preoccupations of poets widely separated from each other by both geographical space and historical epochs which highlights that there are pertinent cross cutting trends in women spectry which could be exploited as a basis for monolithism The text identifies the main tenets of feminism as recognition of women s oppression and a determined effort through concerted strategies to resist and thwart this oppression and to navigate women out of peripheral positions into positions of power By showing that these tenets are uniformly present in the poetry of very different women it posits this uniformity as a stable ground on which feminist monolithism could be constructed without glossing over existent differences between and among women Feminism and Poetry Jan Montefiore, 2004 This is a fresh edition of this classic work on feminism and poetry which offers an introduction by Claire Buck Intercultural Voices in Contemporary British Literature L. Sauerberg, 2001-11-12 During the last decades of the twentieth century it has become increasingly difficult to consider British literature as national or mainstream The book investigates contemporary fiction and poetry written in or relating to Britain and uncovers a distinct sense of a new and different national and social reality Tracing literary effects of migration globalization and regionalization the book focuses on literary tradition as an inspiration or object of hate and frustration for the exploration and expression of post Imperial experiences
