Creative Construction Gary P. Pisano,2019-01-15 This myth busting book shows large companies can construct a strategy system and culture of innovation that creates sustained growth Every company wants to grow and the most proven way is through innovation The conventional wisdom is that only disruptive nimble startups can innovate once a business gets bigger and more complex corporate arteriosclerosis sets in Gary Pisano s remarkable research conducted over three decades and his extraordinary on the ground experience with big companies and fast growing ones that have moved beyond the start up stage provides new thinking about how the scale of bigger companies can be leveraged for advantage in innovation He begins with the simply reality that bigger companies are well different Demanding that they be like Uber is no more realistic than commanding your dog to speak French Bigger companies are complex They need to sustain revenue streams from existing businesses and deal with Wall Street s demands These organizations require a different set of management practices and approaches a discipline focused on the strategies systems and culture for taking their companies to the next level Big can be beautiful but it requires creative construction by leaders to avoid the creative destruction that is all too often the fate of too many

Inspection and Accountability Bill Laar,2013-09-05 In September 2005 school inspections changed drastically The onus is now on the school to highlight its own strengths and weaknesses to document them convincingly and to show action plans for improvement This book written by an Ofsted Inspector shows you exactly what to do and how best to present your Self Evaluation It also tells you how to prepare for the two day inspection so that everything goes as well as possible

Academic and Professional Writing in an Age of Accountability Shirley Wilson Logan,Wayne H. Slater,2018-12-27 What current theoretical frameworks inform academic and professional writing What does research tell us about the effectiveness of academic and professional writing programs What do we know about existing best practices What are the current guidelines and procedures in evaluating a program s effectiveness What are the possibilities in regard to future research and changes to best practices in these programs in an age of accountability Editors Shirley Wilson Logan and Wayne H Slater bring together leading scholars in rhetoric and composition to consider the history trends and future of academic and professional writing in higher education through the lens of these five central questions The first two essays in the book provide a history of the academic and professional writing program at the University of Maryland Subsequent essays explore successes and challenges in the establishment and development of writing programs at four other major institutions identify the features of language that facilitate academic and professional communication look at the ways digital practices in academic and professional writing have shaped how writers compose and respond to texts and examine the role of assessment in curriculum and pedagogy An afterword by distinguished rhetoric and composition scholars Jessica Enoch and Scott Wible offers perspectives on the future of academic and professional writing This collection takes stock of the historical rhetorical linguistic digital and evaluative aspects of the teaching of writing in higher education Among the critical issues addressed are how university writing programs were first established and what early challenges they faced where writing programs were housed and who administered them how the language backgrounds of composition students inform the way writing is taught the ways in which current writing technologies create new digital environments and how student learning and programmatic outcomes should be assessed

The Myth of Accountability Eric S. Glover, 2013 School improvement that is reliant on accountability is a myth based upon falsehoods and wrong assumptions Public education's increased dependence on this foundation for school reform and change has failed both students and teachers The fact remains that people who create education policy do not understand what is best for individual students and classrooms Their devised curriculum standards are in actuality curriculum limits that prevent students from creating successful personal and academic futures because they thwart any natural learning exploration As such these market inspired externally motivated standards limit higher level learning Instead of treating students and teachers as subjects to be actively engaged in learning accountability systems treat students and teachers like objects to be manipulated by training By presenting the lead teach learn triad Eric Glover's The Myth of Accountability discusses the pitfalls of accountability systems in schools while also investigating how schools have somehow managed to improve in spite of their negative influences In order to evolve school reform Glover introduces the concept of developmental empowerment in order to frame how school participants must view themselves as perpetually changing learners and systematically update school reform Through open inquiry Glover encourages educators to challenge the standardization and accountability practices that limit children's futures
