Making History An Introduction To The Practices Of History:

Making History Peter Lambert, Phillipp Schofield, 2004-08-02 Making History offers a fresh perspective on the study of the past. It is an exhaustive exploration of the practice of history, historical traditions, and the theories that surround them. Discussing the development and growth of history as a discipline and of the profession of the historian, the book encompasses a huge diversity of influences organized around the following themes: the professionalization of the discipline, the most significant movements in historical scholarship in the last century including the Annales School, the increasing interdisciplinary trends in scholarship, theory in historical practice including Marxism, postmodernism, and gender history, historical practice outside the academy. The volume offers a coherent set of chapters to support undergraduates, postgraduates, and others interested in the historical processes that have shaped the discipline of history. Making

History Peter Lambert, 2017 Making History Institute of American Indian Arts, 2020-10-15 Written by scholars actively producing Native art resources, this book guides readers, students, educators, collectors, and the public in how to learn about Indigenous cultures as visualized in our creative endeavors. History in Practice 2nd edition Ludmilla

Jordanova, 2016-07-28 History in Practice explores the discipline's breadth, its complexities, and the tasks it takes on. This study, by one of the liveliest and most acute practitioners in the field, demystifies what historians do. It looks at history as an academic discipline but also engages with the use of historical ideas in the wider world. Historical work has public consequences and draws considerable energy from contemporary preoccupations. For this new edition of her respected and widely used book, Ludmilla Jordanova has revised the text and added a new chapter that takes into account recent world events. She discusses the role of the internet, globalisation, world history, and the current enthusiasm for military history. This book is essential reading for all students needing an understanding of history as a discipline. Making History with

Manuscripts in Medieval and Early Modern Europe Johannes Junge, Ruhland, 2025-06-02 This volume interrogates the role of the manuscript medium in conveying history to medieval and early modern readers. The contributors adopt a capacious understanding of history to explore history writing in its materiality from a variety of methodological and disciplinary perspectives. The core contentions of this book are that the material features of manuscripts helped shape historical narratives and defining history conceptually and that therefore the makers of these manuscripts played an instrumental role in history writing alongside authors. Ranging from the ninth to the sixteenth centuries and comprising materials from across Western Europe in Latin and the vernaculars, the ten chapters of this volume uncover stakes and strategies tied to highly specific contexts such as late thirteenth-century Corbie or fifteenth-century Zurich, yet partaking in a shared practice of history writing with manuscripts. Manuscript makers made history through layout, rewriting, illumination, compilation, choice of script, and annotation, and conferred history writing its material dimension. This volume therefore situates the writing of history in its material dimension and invites us to consider medieval and early modern historiography in its medium.

Making History Jorma Kalela, 2011-11-18 Everyone has a personal connection to the past independent of historical inquiry So what is the role of the historian Making History argues that historians have damagingly dissociated the discipline of history from the everyday nature of history defining their work only in scholarly terms Exploring the relationship between history and society Kalela makes the case for a more participatory historical research culture in which historians take account of their role in society and the ways in which history making as a basic social practice is present in their work Making History not only asks provocative questions about the role of the historian it also provides practical guidance for students and historians on planning research projects with greater public impact This book is vital reading for all historians lay and professional and will be an essential text for undergraduate and postgraduate courses on historiography and research methods

The Pursuit of History John Tosh, 2015-02-11 This classic introduction to the study of history invites the reader to stand back and consider some of its most fundamental questions what is the point of studying history How do we know about the past Does an objective historical truth exist and can we ever access it In answering these central questions John Tosh argues that despite the impression of fragmentation created by postmodernism in recent years history is a coherent discipline which still bears the imprint of its nineteenth century origins Consistently clear sighted he provides a lively and compelling guide to a complex and sometimes controversial subject while making his readers vividly aware of just how far our historical knowledge is conditioned by the character of the sources and the methods of the historians who work on them The sixth edition has been revised and updated with key new material including a brand new chapter on public history sections on digitised sources and historical controversy discussion of topics including transnational history and the nature of the archive an expanded range of examples and case studies a comprehensive companion website providing valuable supporting material study questions and a bank of primary sources Lucid and engaging this edition retains all the user friendly features that have helped to make this book a favourite with both students and lecturers including marginal glosses illustrations and suggestions for further reading Along with its companion website this is an essential guide to the theory and practice of history

History, Memory and Public Life Anna Maerker, Simon Sleight, Adam Sutcliffe, 2018-07-06 History Memory and Public Life introduces readers to key themes in the study of historical memory and its significance by considering the role of historical expertise and understanding in contemporary public reflection on the past Divided into two parts the book addresses both the theoretical and applied aspects of historical memory studies Approaches to history and memory introduces key methodological and theoretical issues within the field such as postcolonialism sites of memory myths of national origins and questions raised by memorialisation and museum presentation Difficult pasts looks at history and memory in practice through a range of case studies on contested complex or traumatic memories including the Northern Ireland Troubles post apartheid South Africa and the Holocaust Examining the intersection between history and memory from a wide range of perspectives and supported by guidance on further reading and online resources this book is ideal for students of history as well as those working within the broad interdisciplinary field of memory studies      Making History Greg Clingham,1998 By identifying a dialogical rather than monological relation between postmodern and Enlightenment discourses and texts Making History offers a theoretically and historically nuanced account of eighteenth century cultures and makes a timely and original contribution to the study of the eighteenth century and its dialogue with postmodernism

Making History in Banda Ann Brower Stahl,2001-08-02 Drawing on evidence from several disciplines Ann Brower Stahl reconstructs the daily lives of Banda villagers of west central Ghana from the time that they were drawn into the Niger trade around AD 1300 until British overrule was established early in the twentieth century The case study aims to closely integrate perspectives drawn from archaeology history and anthropology in African studies      Making History Alex

Callinicos,2004-01-01 Making History seeks systematically to address the problem widely discussed by social scientists and historians of the relative roles played by social structures and human agency in social change Alex Callinicos has added an introduction to this new edition updating the argument of this influential book first published in 1987      Research
