Abstract

We examine the determinants of migrants' choices of destination, employment, and remittances from one of the poorest marginal dry areas in Syria. Qualitative and econometric analysis of cross-sectional data indicates that migrants' choices depend mainly on individual, household, and community characteristics and also on availability of opportunities. The main factors affecting the choice of destination and employment are the sending area, age, and sex of migrants, while the educational level had no significant effect in both cases. The larger the endowments of migrants' households, the higher the remittances sent back home to preserve households' assets in marginal dry areas.

1 Introduction

The wide range of literature has described the differences between migrants and non-migrants. According to the paper on New Economics of Labor Migration (NELM) published by Stark and Bloom (1985), migration is a family arrangement, migrants are chosen according to specific characteristics, they are usually younger and more educated (Stark and Taylor 1989), and it is more likely that international migrants would be males (Massey and Zenteno 1999). Also, having a spouse in the home country increases migrants' likelihood of return (Constant and Massey 2002).

Migration is not a random process; people who migrate usually have different individual, household, and community characteristics than those left behind (Eora and Kios 2001; Moss and Taylor 2006). Several theories tried to explain the migration phenomenon. Taylor and Martin (2001) stated that classical and neoclassical theories—despite their contribution to explain this phenomenon from a macroeconomic perspective—could not explain the migration selectivity process (i.e., why do some people migrate while others do not?). Moreover, the theory stresses that migrants' destinations as well as their probabilities of getting work are a function of their individual characteristics.

According to the NELM, migration consists of a household's strategy that aims at mitigating risks and facing market failures (namely credit and labor markets) in developing countries. Thus, migration is a solution. Remittances sent home by migrants help household to diversify and improve their production systems and thus to minimize risks.

Memories of Jesus Halvor Moxnes,2021-02-09 This is a different book about Jesus It does not study the Gospels as sources for the historical Jesus but reads them as memories about Jesus each Gospel with its characteristic picture of Jesus The book traces the transmission and growth of memories of Jesus in various contexts and in different historical periods It also introduces readers to the little known counterstories to Christian memories in Jewish sources as well as to the rival stories in the Quran A central perspective in the book is the troubling fact that for centuries the memories of Jesus contributed to hate speech against the Jews in Europe The passion narratives in the Gospels put the blame for the death of Jesus upon Jewish leaders and these stories were transmitted across the centuries as historical truth Memories of Jesus have served as identity markers not only for churches but also for societies and countries The last chapters focus on how the memories of Jesus have played an important role in supporting the identity of oppressed and marginalized groups in particular in the contemporary United States

Marginality, Migration and Education Winniefridah Matsa, 2020-12-21 This book provides a missing link between marginality, migration and education in Zimbabwe, focusing on the educational experiences of migrants' children in an effort to influence government policies concerning migrant parents and their left behind children. While there is a large body of knowledge on the education of children of immigrants in destination countries, this book aims to fill in the gap by addressing the children who do not migrate with their parents. Through this unique approach, the book examines the education statuses of these left behind children, offering insights into their educational challenges, rights and inequities to better inform policy decisions to meet the 2030 education agenda for action established by the United Nations in 2015. The book will be of interest and use to governments, NGOs, teachers and local communities in Africa as a resource to better understand the situation of migrants' left behind children as a category of vulnerable children in difficult circumstances.

Economics of Immigration P. N. (Raja) Junankar, 2016-04-08 Poverty, famines, wars and ethnic conflicts lead to large movements of refugees. The papers in this book provide an analysis of the economics of immigration. Junankar discusses why people migrate, the likely destinations for migrants and their employment in the destination countries. He studies the benefits to the migrant families in terms of higher wages and living standards and also studies how immigrants fare in the Australian labour markets in terms of finding good jobs and whether there is discrimination against them. Economics of Immigration analyses the macroeconomic impacts of immigration on the Australian economy and discusses why some groups favour immigration while other groups are against it. Junankar argues immigration has been beneficial for employment and growth, not only adding to labour supply but also to labour demand, hence leading to favourable outcomes. This collection of essays shows how immigration has helped the economic development of Australia while also highlighting that the historical reasons for immigration lie in the colonisation of many countries in Asia and Africa. Rural Migration In Developing Nations Calvin Goldscheider, 2019-07-11 What is the relationship between migration and rural social structure? How does the selective movement out of rural areas affect the economic and social conditions of migrants, their families and their places of origin? Addressing these and other questions, the contributors to this book consider rural migration patterns in the context of social change and economic development in three less developed nations: Korea, Sri Lanka and Mali. Through comparative analysis, the authors reveal both the diversity and the cross-national similarities of rural migration, offering theoretical bases for its interpretation and pointing to policy implications for developing areas. Development Centre Studies: Education, Migration and Productivity An Analytic Approach and Evidence from Rural Mexico Taylor J. Edward, Yúnes-Naude Antonio, 1999-04-26 This book challenges the assumption that the major benefits of investment in rural education accrue to traditional agricultural activities such as staples production

The Future of the Welfare State Bent Greve, 2016-03-16 A common belief is that the European welfare states are in a position of crisis or heading towards one with the process of globalization removing any hopes of eventual worldwide welfare This book challenges this assumption arguing that a proper understanding of the future role of the welfare state requires a broader social perspective that encompasses the interaction of economic political and social processes The Future of the Welfare State provides an interdisciplinary analysis of the practical and theoretical challenges which the welfare state and progress towards world welfare can and must meet in the future
