Marigolds in August, And, The Guest Athol Fugard, Ross Devenish, 1992 Marigolds in August, And, The Guest
Athol Fugard, Ross Devenish, 1992 Original works exploring life in tumultuous South Africa with the intimacy and detail specific to the camera's eye The Captain's Tiger Athol Fugard, 1999 In the latest of his post apartheid plays The Captain's Tiger A Memoir for the Stage Athol Fugard sets out as a young seafarer and writer to begin The Great Novel the exciting tales of his mother a young Afrikaner and her escape from small town life But what he discovers on his travels is that the secret to great writing comes from the desperate need to tell the truth and in turn he finds his voice as an author

Playland Athol Fugard, 1993 Set in a traveling amusement park's temporary encampment on the outskirts of a small town Playland charts the unlikely relationship between a white man recently released from military service and a black man who works as the carnival's night watchman In the course of the long New Year's Eve they spend together which marks the transition from the 80s to the 90s they are forced to confront not only their long held racial animosities but the soul searching secrets they share Also included in this volume is A Place With the Pigs Fugard's personal parable based on the true story of Pavel Ivanovich Navrotsky a deserter from the Soviet army who spent the forty one years of his self imposed exile in a pigsty Back cover Cousins Athol Fugard, 2013-10-15 In this remarkable memoir Athol Fugard author of The Road to Mecca A Lesson From Aloes Master Harold and the boys Valley Song and numerous other works for the stage paints a moving study of his early years in South Africa Cousins focuses on Fugard's relationship with his two cousins and their impact which led the author to a lifelong pursuit of a writing career

The Journal of Commonwealth Literature, 1994
One number each year includes Annual bibliography of Commonwealth literature Athol Fugard Alan Shelley, 2009-04-30
A playwright whose work is appreciated on a global scale Athol Fugard's plays have done more to document and provide a cultural commentary on Apartheid era South Africa than any other writer in the last century Using mostly migrant workers and township dwellers and staging guerrilla raid productions in black areas Fugard frequently came into conflict with the government forcing him to take his work overseas Consequently powerful plays such as The Blood Knot Sizwe Banzi is Dead and Master Harold and the boys came to broadcast the inequities of the Apartheid era to the world Fugard's work retains an insistent influence and is studied and performed the world over Alan Shelley's study is an accessible but profound analysis of the man his work and its influence the social injustices that drive him and the lives of those who people his remarkable plays

The Columbia Guide to South African Literature in English Since 1945 Gareth Cornwell,Dirk Klopper,Craig MacKenzie,2010 From the outset South Africa's history has been marked by division and conflict along racial and ethnic lines From 1948 until 1994 this division was formalized in the National Party's policy of apartheid Because apartheid intruded on every aspect of private and public life South African literature was preoccupied with the politics of race and social engineering Since the release from prison of Nelson Mandela in 1990 South Africa has been a new nation in the making inspired by a nonracial idealism yet beset by poverty and violence South African writers have responded in various ways to Njabulo Ndebele's call to rediscover the ordinary. The result has been a kaleidoscope of texts in which evolving cultural forms and modes of identity are rearticulated and explored. An invaluable guide for general readers as well as scholars of African literary history, this comprehensive text celebrates the multiple traditions and exciting future of the South African voice. Although the South African Constitution of 1994 recognizes no fewer than eleven official languages, English has remained the country's literary lingua franca. This book offers a narrative overview of South African literary production in English from 1945 to the postapartheid present. An introduction identifies the most interesting and noteworthy writing from the period. Alphabetical entries provide accurate and objective information on genres and writers. An appendix lists essential authors published before 1945.

The Cinema of Apartheid Keyan Tomaselli, 2013-12-13. This study analyses the historical development of South African cinema up to the book's original publication in 1988. It describes the films and comments on their relationship to South African realities, addressing all aspects of the industry, focusing on domestic production but also discussing international film companies who use South Africa as a location. It explores tensions between English language and Afrikaans language films and between films made for blacks and films made for whites. Going behind the scenes, the author looks at the financial infrastructure, the marketing strategies and the work habits of the film industry. He concludes with a discussion of independent filmmaking, the obstacles facing South Africans who want to make films with artistic and political integrity, and the possibilities of progress in the future. Includes comprehensive bibliography and filmography listing all feature films made in South Africa between 1910 and 1985, together with documentary films by South Africans, non-South Africans, and exiles about the country.

Student Encyclopedia of African Literature Douglas Killam, Alicia L. Kerfoot, 2007-12-30. African literature is a vast subject of growing output and interest. Written especially for students, this book selectively surveys the topic in a clear and accessible way. Included are roughly 600 alphabetically arranged entries on writers, genres, and major works. Many entries cite works for further reading, and the volume closes with a selected general bibliography. Africa is a land of contrasts and of diverse cultures and traditions. It is also a land of conflict and creativity. The literature of the continent draws upon a fascinating body of oral traditions and lore and also reflects the political turmoil of the modern world. With the increased interest in cultural diversity and the growing centrality of Africa in world politics, African literature is figuring more and more prominently in the curriculum. This book helps students learn about the African literary achievement. Written expressly for students, this book is far more accessible than other reference works on the subject. Included are nearly 600 alphabetically arranged entries on authors such as Chinua Achebe, Athol Fugard, Buchi Emecheta, Nadine Gordimer, and Wole Soyinka, major works such as Things Fall Apart and Petals of Blood, and individual genres such as the novel, drama, and poetry. Many entries cite works for further reading, and the volume closes with a selected general bibliography.
