Advances in Marine Environmental Protection: Challenges, Solutions and Perspectives

Mehran Idris Khan, Yen-Chiang Chang, Wen-Hong Liu, 2025-04-29

Environments have no boundaries and no borders. Managing oceanic environments, particularly the threats and risks of pollution, should also consider the shared responsibility of all coastal states. Emerging issues for oceanic pollution governance include global changes like rising temperature, ocean acidification, but also disturbances of ecosystem functioning by plastic and pollution by other emerging contaminants, for example noise pollution and deep sea mining. These call for efficient and sustainable prevention and restoration strategies such as efficient urban and industrial sewage treatment plants, efficiently administered transnational marine protected areas and among others sustainable aquaculture, extensive small scale fisheries. Environmental protection warrants the development of interrelationships between marine sciences, relevant industries and ocean governance, developing internationally accepted rules and regulations for sustainable ocean management. This Research Topic will explore possible new domains of ocean governance and the marine environment from the interdisciplinary perspectives of the rule of law, including the international agreement on equal conventions, the Convention on Facilitation of International Maritime Traffic, the Convention on the International Regulation for Preventing Collisions at Sea and International Convention for the Prevention of Pollution from Ships (MARPOL).

A.L.D. Nunes, Lisa Emelia Svensson, Anil Markandya, 2017-02-24. The trans disciplinary thematic areas of oceans management and policy require stocktaking of the state of knowledge on ecosystem services being derived from coastal and marine areas. Recently adopted Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) especially Goals 14 and 15 explicitly focus on this. This Handbook brings together a carefully chosen set of world class contributions from ecology, economics and other development science and attempts to provide policy relevant scientific information on ecosystem services from marine and coastal ecosystems, nuances of economic valuation, relevant legal and sociological response policies for effective management of marine areas for enhanced human well being. The contributors focus on the possible nexus of science, society and science policy with the objective of informing decision makers of the governmental agencies, business and industry and civil society in general with respect to sustainable management of Oceans.
Citizen Science for Coastal and Marine Conservation John A.

Cigliano, Heidi L. Ballard, 2017-10-31. In recent years, citizen science has emerged as a powerful new concept to enable the general public, students and volunteers to become involved in scientific research. A prime example is in biodiversity conservation where data collection and monitoring can be greatly enhanced through citizen participation. This is the first book to provide much needed guidance and case studies from marine and coastal conservation. The novelty and rapid expansion of the field has created a demand for the discussion of key issues and the development of best practices The book demonstrates the utility and feasibility as well as limitations of using marine and coastal citizen science for conservation and by providing critical considerations i e which questions and systems are best suited for citizen science presents recommendations for best practices for successful marine and coastal citizen science projects A range of case studies for example on monitoring of seabird populations invasive species plastics pollution and the impacts of climate change from different parts of the world is included Also included are discussions on engaging youth indigenous communities and divers and snorkelers as citizen scientists as well as best practices on communication within citizen science building trust with stakeholders and informing marine policy as part of this exciting and empowering way of improving marine and coastal conservation

Sustaining Ocean Observations to Understand Future Changes in Earth's Climate National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Atmospheric Sciences and Climate, Ocean Studies Board, Committee on Sustaining Ocean Observations to Understand Future Changes in Earth's Climate, 2017-12-20

The ocean is an integral component of the Earth's climate system It covers about 70% of the Earth's surface and acts as its primary reservoir of heat and carbon absorbing over 90% of the surplus heat and about 30% of the carbon dioxide associated with human activities and receiving close to 100% of fresh water lost from land ice With the accumulation of greenhouse gases in the atmosphere notably carbon dioxide from fossil fuel combustion the Earth's climate is now changing more rapidly than at any time since the advent of human societies Society will increasingly face complex decisions about how to mitigate the adverse impacts of climate change such as droughts sea level rise ocean acidification species loss changes to growing seasons and stronger and possibly more frequent storms Observations play a foundational role in documenting the state and variability of components of the climate system and facilitating climate prediction and scenario development Regular and consistent collection of ocean observations over decades to centuries would monitor the Earth's main reservoirs of heat carbon dioxide and water and provides a critical record of long term change and variability over multiple time scales Sustained high quality observations are also needed to test and improve climate models which provide insights into the future climate system Sustaining Ocean Observations to Understand Future Changes in Earth's Climate considers processes for identifying priority ocean observations that will improve understanding of the Earth's climate processes and the challenges associated with sustaining these observations over long timeframes
