Marketing And Finance Working The Interface:

Marketing Finance Keith Ward, 2012-05-31 Building on the author's previous book Financial Aspects of Marketing Marketing Finance stresses the pivotal relationship between finance and strategy in the marketing process and clearly demonstrates the techniques and calculations that are necessary to formulate a comprehensive plan. Professor Ward also concentrates on how financial input in marketing can create shareholder value and demonstrates how to achieve the required integration of the finance function with marketing for the successful modern business. Marketing Finance is backed up with a number of integrated industry examples and case studies to demonstrate the success and failure caused by the marketing finance interface.

Marketing & Finance, 1997 A common complaint from senior management is that marketing managers are often unaware of the financial implications of their recommendations. Equally it could be argued that many financial managers lack an understanding of marketing and how it influences such basic issues as sales margins and cash flow. Marketing and Finance offers the opportunity to both marketing and finance managers to gain a better understanding of how their roles integrate in corporate decision making.

Marketing and Finance Michael Halliday, 1997 A common complaint from senior management is that marketing managers are often unaware of the financial implications of their recommendations. Equally it could be argued that many financial managers lack an understanding of marketing and how it influences such basic issues as sales margins and cash flow. Marketing and Finance offers the opportunity to both marketing and finance managers to gain a better understanding of how their roles integrate in corporate decision making. Marketing and Finance uses a shareholder value model to make sense of the multiple ratios and relationships that comprise a firm's financial position. The model is then used in a variety of innovative ways to explore the financial implications of marketing decisions and the financial constraints on those decisions. The text spans working capital management, fixed asset management, cash flow management, investment opportunity appraisal, cost structures and behaviour, the product range as a portfolio. Marketing and Finance is ideal for senior undergraduate programmes in marketing and MBA programmes with an emphasis on integrative approaches to teaching. It is also the ideal reference for senior marketing and financial managers providing them with a common framework for their strategic planning.
