Economics of Child Labour Biswajit Chatterjee, Runa Ray, 2019-05-31 This book examines the effectiveness of trade and non trade policies to combat the menace of child labour Although it has decreased on the global scale in recent years child labour still remains high particularly in the developing countries Keeping in mind the estimated extent of child labour in different regions around the globe the book offers a detailed critical review of both theoretical and empirical literature on the topic as well as the policies to reduce the incidence of child labour It also develops a general equilibrium model to demonstrate the possible effects of growth promoting non trade policies as opposed to direct trade policies on child labour employment mitigation The book argues that of the non trade policies the introduction of compulsory education appears to be an effective instrument for curtailing the child labour problem when families receive targeted subsidies for sending their children to school It also shows that appropriately designed and targeted education subsidies can reduce the incidence of child labour and that social protection measures such as subsidies on school enrolment also tend to have a positive impact The book not only opens up research topics for academicians but is also a valuable resource for policy makers

The Dynamic Macroeconomic Effects of Public Capital Christophe Kamps, 2004-12-22 This book analyzes the dynamic macroeconomic effects of public capital in industrialized countries The issue of whether public capital is productive has received a great deal of recent attention Yet existing empirical analyses have been limited to a small set of countries This book presents a new database that provides internationally comparable capital stock estimates for 22 OECD countries for the 1960 2001 period Building on this database the book estimates the dynamic effects of public capital using a variety of econometric methods The results suggest that public capital is productive in OECD countries on average The theoretical analysis based on a dynamic general equilibrium model shows that the effects of public capital depend crucially on the way the government chooses to finance additional spending
