It presents a varied group of cases of religious confraternities founded by subaltern subjects both in rural and urban spaces of colonial Latin America to understand the dynamics and relations between the peripheral and central areas of colonial society underlying the ways in which colonized subjects navigated the colonial domain with forms of social organization and cultural and religious practices. The book analyzes indigenous and black confraternal cultural practices as forms of negotiation and resistance shaped by local devotional identities that also transgressed imperial religious and racial hierarchies. The analysis of these practices explores the intersections between ethnic identity and ritual devotion as well as how the establishment of black and indigenous religious confraternities carried

Questioning how and why this multiclass and multi ethnic group continued to be labelled by elites and the state as un modern indigena the author uses La Paz to demonstrate the ways in which race class and gender intertwine in urbanization and in conceptions of the city and nation Of interest to scholars researchers and advanced students of Latin American history urban history the history of activism and the history of ethnic conflict this unique study covers the previously neglected first half of the 20th century to shed light on the urban development of La Paz and its racial and political divides
