Jones,2010-11-01 THE STAKES HAD NEVER BEEN HIGHER Tracking a dangerous serial killer was all in a day s work for Special Agent Mary Paris She had the blade the gun the years of training to handle it What she couldn t handle was Clint Sinclair The sinfully sexy slow talkin bull ridin cowboy was responsible for helping her to undercover as a rodeo clown There were just two small problems One the big city agent didn t like bulls And two her new teacher was driving her to distraction And if she couldn t start keeping her head on her job and her hands off of Clint she d wind up with more than just a broken heart Jerry Lewis Chris Fujiwara,2010-10-01 Well known for his slapstick comedic style Jerry Lewis has also delighted worldwide movie audiences with a directing career spanning five decades One of American cinema s great innovators Lewis made unmistakably personal films that often focused on an ideal masculine image and an anarchic manic acting out of the inability to assume this image. Films such as The Bellboy, The Errand Boy, Three on a Couch and The Big Mouth present a series of thematic variations on this tension in which such questions as how to be a man, how to be popular and how to maintain relationships are posed within frameworks that set up a liberating and exhilarating confusion of roles and norms. The Nutty Professor and The Patsy are especially profound and painful examinations of the difficulty experienced by Lewis's character in reconciling loving himself and being loved by others. With sharp, concise observations, Chris Fujiwara examines this visionary director of self-referential comedic masterpieces. The book also includes an enlightening interview with Lewis that offers unique commentary on the creation and study of comedy. Book Review Index, 2004. After the Flash Linda Rosenbery, 2020-11-15 This historical narrative reveals the life of Linda, a young woman struggling to come to grips with her rudderless existence, of her stumbling back to her hometown after a failed marriage and having to face the judgments of a stoic Japanese mother. Chieko's life is in stark contrast, having survived the most horrific last days of World War II and having come of age in occupied Japan where she made a living working in a hostess club serving drinks and dancing with servicemen. Linda wants to write her mother's story, and Chieko always says no. But then something happens between Chieko and Linda as they begin to bond through Linda's apprenticeship in Chieko's flower garden. On those gardening days, after the work is done, they sit at the kitchen table where Chieko quite openly weaves for her daughter the threads of her life, including her determination to survive. Linda, at times, feels traumatized by her mother's descriptions of the war, and most of the time, Linda ends her kitchen table talks and heads to the local bar to get drunk. One spring day, in the fourth year of their kitchen table talks, Chieko says to Linda as they sip scotch: "If you really must tell my story, tell it like the playwright Eugene O'Neill, because he knew sadness." Even though Linda hears it in her mother's voice, each time she speaks about her life, the sorrow in her tone routinely breaks Linda down. But Chieko is funny, too, with stories of coming of age at a time in Japan when most believed romance and life in paradise was a promise made in American films brought in by the occupation. Chieko's hopes and dreams of life in the States with a handsome hero are penned on a photograph of herself that she gives to her American lover as he heads back to the States. It is a simple note that reads: "I promise my eternal love. Of all the lovely traits mothers and daughters can have in common, one of theirs isn't so lovely: They both don't keep promises."
