theoretical outline of the basic modular architecture of the human mind and especially the human capacity to understand agency He then goes on to discuss examples of supernatural agency in detail arguing that the human ability to attribute beliefs and desires to others forms the basis of conceptions of supernatural agents and of such social cognition in which supernatural agents are postulated as interested parties in social life Beliefs about supernatural agency are natural says Pyysiainen in the sense that such concepts are used in an intuitive and automatic fashion Two dots and a straight line below them automatically trigger the idea of a face for example Given that the mind consists of a host of such modular mechanisms certain kinds of beliefs will always have a selective advantage over others Abstract theological concepts are usually elaborate versions of such simpler and more contagious folk conceptions Pyysiainen uses ethnographical and survey materials as well as doctrinal treatises to show that there are certain recurrent patterns in beliefs about supernatural agents both at the level of folk religion and of formal theology
