Misery Prefigured:

Misery Prefigured J Allyn Rosser, 2001-04-09 In her second collection of poems J Allyn Rosser explores the human condition in all its gloriously valiant pathos Misery Prefigured dwells on our continual reinventions of self and world and the restless dynamic that vibrates between them Whether contemplating a failed marriage a visit from God or a pearl dropped into a bottle of Prell shampoo Rosser's wry yet impassioned eye looks hard for a habitable and abiding truth Alternating between deadpan and dead serious these poems are often darkly funny exposing the contradictions inherent in every desire Misery Prefigured is fueled by a cocky unsentimental determination to make some consolatory sense of what passes for reality

Gold Bee Bruce Bond, 2016-08-15 In his collection Gold Bee Bruce Bond takes his cue from Wallace Stevens's Harmonium bringing a finely honed talent to classic poetic questions concerning music the march of progress and the relationship between reality and the imagination Blending humor and pathos Bond examines the absurdities of contemporary life The modern air so full of phantom wires hard to tell the connected from the confused who yak out loud to their beleaguered angels At other times his intricately crafted lyrics weave together myth and history to explore the various roles music and art play in the human experience as when Bond's poems meditate on Orphean themes descending to the underworld of loneliness commercialism or death and emerging with hard and hard won truths Addressing broadly ranging topics from a retelling of the story of Artephius the fabled father of alchemy to a meditation on a fashion ad's wind machine Bond's voice is always penetrating in its examination yet wondering in the face of beauty conjuring for the reader a world where music has the power to move stones not far but far enough

This Country of Mothers Julianna Baggott, 2001-04-10 A mosaic of memories the poems of This Country of Mothers recollect Julianna Baggott's experiences as both mother and daughter With wit compassion aggression and anxiety Baggott examines her maternal history She recalls moments of creation and destruction in her life times of elation and of desperation that mold her as both a woman and a poet This affecting study of motherhood is framed in issues of Catholicism and of poetry itself challenging and espousing the roles of both Throughout her poems Baggott's personal experiences embrace universal themes to birth poems in a language and style that is both powerfully feminine and accessibly human

Objects of Hunger E. C. Belli, 2019-03-11 By turns stoic and ravaged but always with gutting honesty E C Belli invites readers to consider the smallest rooms of the intimate in this first collection With each poem pared down to an elemental language both slight and clear Belli's work exhibits a surprising muscularity in its poise Objects of Hunger explores in reflective raw lyrics the dread and beauty of our inner worlds as expressed through our struggles against the self and the other Each poem is a slender organism that speaks its own mind unafraid of pathos the emotions here have been tried on and lived in and the work accrues lyric after lyric page after page In the second section World War I poems are broken down and dismantled as the voices of that era's poets meld with that of a postpartum mother exposing a shared vernacular among these disparate experiences Other poems in the collection explore the unraveling and entrapments of the domestic but with tenacity in place of softness using a lexicon gathered from Virginia Woolf's The Waves and Djuna Barnes's Nightwood among others What emerges is a finely chiseled portrait of intimacy one that takes seriously love and all discord the fracas of reticence and familiarity Belli gives this world to us by way of a throbbing asceticism in an exploration of resignation concession persistence and monstrosity This collection tells what it is to need with abandon

Smith Blue Camille T. Dungy, 2011-05-18 In Smith Blue Camille T. Dungy offers a survival guide for the modern heart as she takes on twenty-first century questions of love loss and nature From a myriad of lenses these poems examine the human capability for perseverance in the wake of heartbreak the loss of beloved heroes and landscapes and our determination in the face of everyday struggles Dungy explores the dual nature of our presence on the planet juxtaposing the devastation caused by human habitation with our own vulnerability to the capricious whims of our environment In doing so she reveals with fury and tenderness the countless ways in which we both create and are victims of catastrophe This searing collection delves into the most intimate transformations wrought by our ever-shifting personal cultural and physical terrains each fraught with both disillusionment and hope In the end Dungy demonstrates how we are all intertwined regardless of race or species living and loving as best we are able in the shadows of both man-made and natural follies

Flight It is the day after the leaves when buckeyes like a thousand thousand pendulums clock trees and squirrels fat in their winter fur chuckle hours chortle days It is the time for the parting of our ways You slid into the summer of my sleeping crept into my lonely hours ate the music of my dreams You filled yourself with the treated sweet I offered then shut your rolling eyes and stole my sleep Came morning and me awake Came morning Awake I walked twelve miles to the six gun shop On the way there I saw a bird of prayer all furled up by the river I called to it It would not unfold On the way home I killed it It is the time of the waking cold when buckeyes like a thousand thousand metronomes tock time and you fat on my summer sleep titter toward me walk away It is the time for the parting of our days

Names Above Houses Oliver de la Paz, 2001-04-11 In Names above Houses Oliver de la Paz uses both prose and verse poems to create the magical realm of Fidelito Recto a boy who wants to fly and his family of Filipino immigrants Fidelito's mother Maria Elena tries to keep her son grounded while struggling with her own moorings Meanwhile Domingo Fidelito's fisherman father is always at sea even when among them From the archipelago of the Philippines to San Francisco horizontal and vertical movements shape moments of displacement and belonging for this marginalized family Fidelito approaches life with a sense of wonder finding magic in the mundane and becoming increasingly uncertain whether he is in the sky or whether his feet are planted firmly on the ground

Maps for Migrants and Ghosts Luisa A. Igloria, 2020-09-09 Language as key and map to places people and histories lost For immigrants and migrants the wounds of colonization displacement and exile remain unhealed Crossing oceans and generations from her childhood home in Baguio City the Philippines to her immigrant home in Virginia poet Luisa A. Igloria demonstrates how even our most personal and intimate experiences are linked to the larger collective histories that came before In this poetry collection Igloria brings together personal and family histories ruminates on the waxing and waning of family fortunes and reminds us how immigration necessitates and compels transformations Simultaneously at home and displaced in two different worlds the speaker lives in the past and the present and the return to her origins is fraught with disappointment familiarity and alienation Language serves as a key and a map to the places and people that have been lost This collection folds memories encounters portraits and vignettes familiar and alien into both an individual history and a shared collective history a grandfather's ghost stubbornly refusing to come in out of the rain an elderly mother casually dropping YOLO into conversation and the speaker's abandonment of her childhood home for a second time The poems in this collection spring out of a deep longing for place for the past for the selves we used to be before we traveled to where we are now before we became who we are now A stunning addition to the work of immigrant and migrant women poets on their diasporas Maps for Migrants and Ghosts reveals a dream landscape at the edge of this world that is always moving not moving changing and not changing

From the Fire Hills Chad Davidson, 2014-03-06 In From the Fire Hills poet Chad Davidson shows us an Italy that is far from the romanticized notions of sun drenched fields and self discovery Instead we see a maelstrom of chaos and contradiction a place where the frenetic pace of modernity is locked in a daily struggle with recalcitrant history This autobiographical collection explores the myriad ways in which Italian culture survives its own parodies and evokes a modern ferocity that harkens back to Italy's barbarian past As the narrator rendered vulnerable by language embarks on his journey lines of location time and perception blur From the siren song of Dante's grave to the heights of San Luca from streets where policemen with Uzis tread a hair's breadth away from the macabre remains of Capuchin monks Davidson's Italy is a study in contrast between the contemporary and the classical the sacred and the profane Within these poems sensual and savage revelations unfold exposing new uncanny and often uncomfortable spaces to explore in this well traveled realm of Western imagination Throughout the volume loom the fire hills the scorched mountains of Sicily in summer the memories of Italians living near the Gothic Line outside Bologna where the Germans dug in and received heavy bombing at the close of World War II even the wildfires igniting the San Gabriel foothills in southern California all the way back to the burning city of Carthage in Virgil's Aeneid As the ash settles and the smoke clears we realize that what we remember is often just remains shells and burned out wreckage as if there were another type of memory

Heavenly Bodies Cynthia Huntington, 2012-01-19 National Book Award Finalist 2012 In this blistering collection of lyric poems Cynthia Huntington gives an intimate view of the sexual revolution and rebellion in a time before the rise of feminism Heavenly Bodies is a testament to the duality of sex the twin seductiveness and horror of drug addiction and the social political and personal dramas of America in the 1960s From the sweetness of purloined blackberries to the bitter taste of pills the ginger perfume of the Hawaiian Islands to the scream of the winter wind Huntington's fearless and candid poems offer a feast for the senses that is at once mystical and earthy cynical and surreal Echoing throughout are some of the most famous and infamous voices of the times Joan Baez and Charles

Manson Frank Zappa and Betty Friedan Jinns and aliens beckon while cities burn and revolutionaries thunder for change At the center is the semiautobiographical Suzy Creamcheese sensual and rebellious both almighty and powerless in her sexuality Achingly tender yet brutally honest Heavenly Bodies is an unflinching reflection on the most personal of physical and emotional journeys Univeristy Press Books for Public and Secondary Schools 2013 edition Finalist for the National Book Award in Poetry 2012     Instructions, Abject & Fuming Julianna Baggott, 2017-02-07 In this inventive collection Julianna Baggott invites readers to reconsider basic assumptions about language faith motherhood and love With a sharply honed voice featuring parentheticals that often comment on and sometimes undercut what has come before these poems whirl through contemporary America engaging with topics as diverse and timely as Russian mail order brides Internet bullying and school shootings Alongside her cultural commentary the speaker frankly confronts love and sex as well as the beauty and brutality of having children Still other poems reflect questions and considerations of faith the speaker ponders St Thomas in a pet store and imagines Jesus explaining to God how it feels to have a body Baggott s use of obsolete Old English words subverts common language and creates new ways of interrogating the world around us There is heartache on these pages but Baggott also offers humor such as a complaint about a lover s eating habits or an extended discourse on a baby s rattle Baggott s latest proves to be a rollicking book sui generis     Tongue Lyre Tyler Mills, 2013-03-13 In Tongue Lyre Tyler Mills weaves together fragments of myth and memory summoning the works of Ovid Homer and James Joyce to spin a story of violence and the female body Introducing the recurring lyre figure in the collection a voice to counter the violence is Ovid s Philomena who while cruelly rendered speechless nonetheless sets the reader on an eloquent voyage to discover the body through music art and language Other legendary figures making appearances within Telemachos Nestor Cyclops Circe and others are held up as mirrors to reflect the human form as home In this dynamic collection the female body and its relationship to the psyche traverse mythic yet hauntingly familiar contemporary settings as each presents not a single narrative but a progressive exploration of our universal emotional experience     Cinema Muto Jesse Lee Kercheval, 2009-02-25 In Cinema Muto Jesse Lee Kercheval examines the enduring themes of time mortality and love as revealed through the power of silent film Following the ten days of the annual Le Giornate del Cinema Muto in Italy this collection of ekphrastic poems are love letters to the evocative power of silent cinema Kercheval s poems elegantly capture the allure of these rare films which compel hundreds of pilgrims from around the world from scholars and archivists to artists and connoisseurs to flock to Italy each autumn Cinema Muto celebrates the flickering tales of madness and adventure drama and love which are all too often left to decay within forgotten vaults As reels of Mosjoukine and D W Griffith float throughout the collection a portrait also emerges of the simple beauty of Italy in October and of two lovers who are drawn together by their mutual passion for an extinct art Together they revel in recapturing the black and white gestures of a lost world Cinema Muto is a tender tribute to the brief yet unforgettable reign of silent film Brimming with stirring images of dreams desire and the ghosts of cinema legends gone by Kercheval's verse is a testament to the mute beauty and timeless lessons that may still be discovered in a fragile roll of celluloid      Nostalgia for a World Where We Can Live Monica Berlin, 2018-10-11 Monica Berlin's Nostalgia for a World Where We Can Live resides at the turbulent confluence of relentless news cycles and the repeated rending of our interior lives In Berlin's poetry sorrow makes its own landscape solitary intimate forward looking Whether we attempt to traverse it or choose bypass her poems show us where we live how we carry on These poems notice the day in the wind the night tucked up to the train tracks and a slipping in of yesterday memory laden alongside the promise of a more hopeful tomorrow Here is the Midwest vibrant and relic in the ongoing years of collapse and recovery Here the constant companionship of weather lays claim to its own field of vision Here too devastation what's left after Berlin reminds us we are at the mercy of rivers oceans earth wind rain blizzard drought and each other Maybe what I mean to say is that I've come to see all the names we might recognize destruction by Berlin's speaker discovers We might sometimes stupidly call it love On her familiar prairie of lyricism and tumult beauty and ruin Berlin's poems insist plead and seek to reassure In a collection both mournful and urgent both a little book of days and a song this poet meditates on loss wonder and always the consolations of language      Beautiful Trouble Amy Fleury, 2004-08-30 In her first collection of poems Kansas native Amy Fleury captures images of dragging clotheslines baked lawns and sweet potato babies inserting them with an earnest dignity into her stories of midwestern life Beautiful Trouble explores the subtleties of landscape place families girlhood womanhood and everyday existence on the prairie Fleury writes of the Midwest with authenticity speaks of romance with delicate allure and recalls the heartbreak of childhood without self pity In meditations on resilience and life's contradictions Fleury engages her characters fully and paints their souls and sensations evenly in language both rare and beautiful She is a poet in love with sound and its power to summon majesty from quotidian scenes Her poems are brief and striking depending on exquisite word choice and balance to achieve a simple order on the page      Zion TJ Jarrett, 2014-08-18 Zion the latest collection of poems by TJ Jarrett is the poignant study of the resonating effects of the civil rights movement on one family Jarrett lovingly explores the minutiae of mortality and race across three generations of Dark Girls who have come together one summer to grieve and to remember as one of them passes to the farther shore a place beyond retribution where there is only forgiveness The Mississippi of Jarrett's collection is alive with fireflies and locusts and murders of crows yet for some it is a wasteland of unanswered prayers burning evenings and the shades of dead or disappeared loved ones There the dark nights of the soul weigh long and heavy and every heart has its solstice and its ache is unrelenting Yet much as every solstice has an equinox every time to kill has a time to forgive Throughout the volume the author imagines opportunities for compassion on multiple levels from sweeping pardons to the most intimate of mercies Jarrett's faceless narrator confesses the past through conversation and exploration with notorious Mississippi governor Theodore Bilbo two minds two hearts two races at last face to face At once brutal and achingly tender Jarrett's volume itself is a vibrant and musical body singing to all its parts

Birthmark Jon Marcelino Pineda, 2004-03-11 In Jon Pineda's debut collection Birthmark loss takes the shape of a scar memory the shape of a childhood and identity the shape of a birthmark on a lover's thigh Like water taking the form of its container Pineda's poems swell to fill the lines of his experiences Against the backdrop of Tidewater Virginia's crabs and cicadas Pineda invokes his mestizo the Tagalog word for being half Filipino childhood weaving laments for a tenuous paternal relationship and the loss of a sibling Channeling these fragmented memories into a new discovery of self Birthmark reclaims an identity delicate yet unrelenting with plaintive tones marked equally by pain reflection and redemption

The Gospel according to Wild Indigo Cyrus Cassells, 2018-03-05 Finalist for the Balcones Poetry Prize 2018 Finalist for the Helen C Smith Award for the Best Book of Poetry from the Texas Institute of Letters 2019 Nominated for the NAACP Image Award for Outstanding Literature in Poetry 2019 Consisting of two dynamic song cycles Cyrus Cassells's sixth poetry volume The Gospel according to Wild Indigo keeps the reader on edge with a timeless and beguiling feast of language that fuses together history memory and family The first cycle rooted in the culture of the Gullah people of Charleston and the Sea Islands celebrates the resilience of the rice and indigo working slaves and their descendants who have forged a unique Africa inspired language and culture Set against a Mediterranean backdrop the second cycle explores themes of pilgrimage love and loss concluding with a pair of elegies to the poet's mother and the many men lost in the juggernaut of the AIDS crisis Throughout Cassells invites the reader to consider the duality of grief and love as well as the shifting connections between past and present Cassells's language is always striking unpredictable and beautiful conjuring a world not only of placid seagulls perched in pine trees like festive Christmas ornaments but also one where Death prevailed tirelessly as a forest partisan His poems transport the reader across time space and language searching constantly not just for empathy but also for the human spirit in its triumph for our human joy laced with an ageless grieving

Millennial Teeth Dan Albergotti, 2014-09-18 Both bleak and bewildering Millennial Teeth the visceral new collection by poet Dan Albergotti maps a contradictory journey filled with longing and dread cynicism and hope A heady mix of traditional forms and more experimental verse Albergotti's volume lures readers inexorably into the poet's obsessions with mystery doubt ephemerality and silence The poetry in Millennial Teeth will feel both refreshingly new and strangely familiar to Albergotti's audience Some poems pay direct tribute to such literary luminaries as Wallace Stevens and Philip Larkin while others give nods to icons of pop culture from Radiohead to Roman Polanski The narrator muses on the resurrection of Christina the Astonishing the works of Coleridge and the mindless duties of minor players in Shakespeare's Hamlet Yet these familiar faces are not our friends they are juxtaposed with the heartbreaking apocalypses both natural and man made that have plagued the world since the first plane flew into the World Trade Center A reluctant witness to such events the narrator of these poems attempts to navigate his own personal crises including the mental illness and dementia of loved ones and the inability to connect with others from the darkness of a personal orbit far from the sun As he vehemently rejects the notions of religious succor immortality and the passive acceptance of fate he simultaneously yearns to be proven wrong Yet despite his trials Albergotti s narrator maintains a gallows humor and wry insight that balance his despair A riveting exploration of the all too human struggle between faith and doubt skepticism and obsession Millennial Teeth has both heart and bite in plenty

Strange Valentine A. Loudermilk, 2005-09-26 A Loudermilk utilizes confessional persona and third person poems throughout this intimate yet socially conscious first collection Strange Valentine is an indictment of love fixating on the paranoid relationship between body and state on the dangerous relationship between family history and sexual history and on the elusive relationship between gender and sexuality specifically as experienced in the working class towns of the southernmost Midwest Riding highly crafted rhythms in sound line and invented form Loudermilk s multivoiced storytelling resounds with the characters and heartbreaks of the heartland

Year of the Snake Lee Ann Roripaugh, 2004-03-08 In her second collection of poems Lee Ann Roripaugh probes themes of mixed race female identities evoking the molting processes of snakes and insects who shed their skins and shells as an ongoing metaphor for transformation of self Intertwining contemporary renditions of traditional Japanese myths and fairy tales with poems that explore the landscape of childhood and early adolescence she blurs the boundaries between myth and memory between real and imagined selves This collection explores cultural psychological and physical liminalities and exposes the diasporic arc cast by first generation Asian American mothers and their second generation daughters revealing a desire for metamorphosis of self through time geography culture and myth
