

The Ultimate Guide to Direct Indexing

By IndexOne

What is direct indexing?

Direct indexing is an investment strategy that allows investors to directly own a portfolio of individual stocks or securities that replicate the performance of a specific index, such as the S&P 500, rather than investing in a traditional index fund or exchange-traded fund (ETF).

What is tax-loss harvesting?

While not all investments yield profits, there is a potential silver lining when faced with a losing investment: the opportunity to leverage that loss to reduce your tax obligations and enhance your portfolio's overall positioning.

This is where tax-loss harvesting becomes relevant. By selling the industrial stocks that have depreciated in value, you have the opportunity to utilize those losses to offset the capital gains generated from selling the tech stocks, effectively lowering your tax liability.
