Reading In The Secondary School Classroom:

Reading in Secondary Content Areas Zhihui Fang, Mary Schleppegrell, 2008 What does it mean to teach reading in the context of the middle and high school classroom Don't students already know how to read by the time they get to secondary school And how can a busy teacher take time away from the packed curriculum of science history mathematics or language arts to teach reading This book presents a linguistic approach to teaching reading in different subjects an approach that focuses on language itself Central to this approach is a view that knowledge is constructed in and through language and that language changes with changes in knowledge As students move from elementary to secondary schools they encounter specialized knowledge and engage in new contexts of learning in all subjects This means that the language of secondary school learning is quite different from the language of the elementary years While in the elementary years the subject matter of reading materials is often close to students everyday life experiences the curriculum of secondary school deals with knowledge that is removed from students personal lives and everyday contexts The language that constructs this more specialized knowledge thus tends to be more abstract technical information laden and hierarchically organized than the more familiar and friendly language that students typically encounter during the elementary years Students need to develop specialized literacies literacy relevant to each content area as well as a critical literacy they can use across subject areas to engage with reflect on and assess specialized and advanced knowledge This functional language analysis approach is shown using actual secondary social studies science and math textbooks and using a literary text

Handbook of Individual Differences in Reading Peter Afflerbach, 2015-08-11 The central unifying theme of this state of the art contribution to research on literacy is its rethinking and reconceptualization of individual differences in reading Previous research focused on cognitive components of reading signaled the need for ongoing work to identify relevant individual differences in reading to determine the relationships of individual differences to reading development and to account for interactions among individual differences Addressing developments in each of these areas this volume also describes affective individual differences and the environments in which individual differences in reading may emerge operate interact and change The scant comprehensive accounting of individual differences in reading is reflected in the nature of reading instruction programs today the outcomes that are expected from successful teaching and learning and the manner in which reading development is assessed An important contribution of this volume is to provide prima facie evidence of the benefits of broad conceptualization of the ways in which readers differ The Handbook of Individual Differences in Reading moves the field forward by encompassing cognitive non cognitive contextual and methodological concerns Its breadth of coverage serves as both a useful summary of the current state of knowledge and a guide for future work in this area

Effects of an Extensive Reading Programme on Secondary School Students' Reading Motivation and Attitude Nico Studer, 2021-04-06 Master s Thesis from the year 2020 in the subject

Education Reading Instruction grade 6 University of Applied Sciences Northwestern Switzerland language English abstract

In this thesis the influence an extensive reading programme has on the motivation and the attitude of secondary school students regarding reading in English is analysed Based on the pre existing theoretical research about extensive reading two questionnaires were designed in order to measure changes in reading attitude and reading motivation of secondary school students The sample consisted of 5 secondary school classes in Switzerland and it included all three levels of secondary school A E P 81 Swiss secondary school students aged between 13 and 16 went through a six week extensive reading programme while three other classes one of each level did not and functioned as a control group Throughout the six weeks students read 20 minutes at the start of every lesson They were able to choose graded readers from a mobile library which was installed in the classroom They did not have to take any tests after reading The only things they had to do is read in their own tempo choose a book they like from the library and leave a feedback at the back end of the books they read in order to inform the next reader of the same book After six weeks of extensive reading the changes in reading attitude and reading motivation were quantified through the second survey All test groups except for the level P class which is the highest level in the Swiss school system showed a statistically significant increase in reading motivation For the most part the positive attitudinal changes towards reading in English were dramatic thanks to the characteristics of the extensive reading programme This became evident because especially A and E secondary school students assessed their reading competence much more highly after the programme and they had a lot more fun reading than they had expected before the programme
