Language at the Speed of Sight Mark Seidenberg, 2017-01-03 In this important and alarming New York Times book see why so many American students are falling behind in their reading skills while others around the world excel The way we teach reading is not working and it cannot continue We have largely abandoned phonics based reading instruction despite research that supports its importance for word recognition Rather than treating Black English as a valid dialect and recognizing that speaking one dialect can impact the ability to learn to read in another teachers simply dismiss it as incorrect English And while we press children to develop large vocabularies because we think being a good reader means knowing more words studies have found that a large vocabulary is only an indication of better pattern recognition Understanding the science of reading is more important than ever for us and for our children Seidenberg helps us do so by drawing on cutting edge research in machine learning linguistics and early childhood development Language at the Speed of Sight offers an erudite and scathing examination of this most human of activities and concrete proposals for how our society can produce better readers

Occupied Reading Alan A. Block, 2023-05-31 Today's growing national concern about education centers on the paramount importance of teaching reading and writing This volume offers a rigorous examination of reading and the pedagogy of reading critically The book examines the crucial role of reading in the education of the child for the year 2000 and explores the history of reading and readers in America while surveying the attendant literacy debates The author examines the historical progress of American reading instruction demonstrating that how one is taught to read not only determines what one will read but also what is permissible to read and how pedagogies of reading define reading publics An important chapter focuses on reading as a process of identity construction that creates not only a text but shapes the person who reads that text The book also describes reading as a psychological process in which the creative act of manipulating the text produces the self and the world A final chapter discusses reading as the center of the educational system and examines methodologies An index is provided
