The History and Antiquities of North Durham, as Subdivided Into the Shires of Norham, Island, and Bedlington, Which, from the Saxon Period Until the Year 1844, Constituted Parcels of the County Palatine of Durham, But are Now United to the County of Northumberland... by the Rev. James Raine,... James Raine (the Elder.),1852 A History of the Church of Durham Simeon (of Durham),1988 Durham (Classic Reprint) J. L. Low,2015-07-16 Excerpt from Durham Danish invasions the see of Hexham came to an end the diocese was re annexed to that of Lindisfarne and the bishop removed to chester le street whence in a d 995 the see was transferred to Durham Soon after this the Lothians which had not perhaps occupied much of the attention of the bishops at chester le street were ceded to Scotland and came under the rule of the Scottish bishops The see of Carlisle was founded in the twelfth century and thus the diocese at last became nearly what it now is It is well known that during at least the latter part of the time of the Roman Occupation there was a Christian Church in Britain but it seems to have been chie y confined to the Roman settlements and though there are abundant traces of the Roman sway in the counties of Durham and Northumberland in the remains of roads of numerous encampments and notably of the great wall which reached from the estuary of the Tyne to the Solway Frith yet there is no reason to believe that the Romans ever made any permanent settlement to the north of the Tees It is vain therefore to Inquire after any traces of Christianity before the anglo saxon conquest About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works History of North West Durham George Neasham,1882* Roman Durham James A.
