Roman Glass Glass of the Roman World Justine Bayley, Ian Freestone, Caroline Jackson, 2015-07-31 Glass of the Roman World illustrates the arrival of new cultural systems mechanisms of trade and an expanded economic base in the early 1st millennium AD which in combination allowed the further development of the existing glass industry Glass became something which encompassed more than simply a novel and highly decorative material Glass production grew and its consumption increased until it was assimilated into all levels of society used for display and luxury items but equally for utilitarian containers windows and even tools These 18 papers by renowned international scholars include studies of glass from Europe and the Near East The authors write on a variety of topics where their work is at the forefront of new approaches to the subject They both extend and consolidate aspects of our understanding of how glass was produced traded and used throughout the Empire and the wider world drawing on chronology typology patterns of distribution and other methodologies including the incorporation of new scientific methods Though focusing on a single material the papers are firmly based in its archaeological context in the wider economy of the Roman world and consider glass as part of a complex material culture controlled by the expansion and contraction of the Empire The volume is presented in honor of Jenny Price a foremost scholar of Roman glass Glass of the Roman Empire David Whitehouse, Corning Museum of Glass, 1988 Islamic Glass in the Making Nadine Schibille, 2022-03-31 New insights into the history of Islamic glassmaking The ancient glass industry changed dramatically towards the end of the first millennium The Roman glassmaking tradition of mineral soda glass was increasingly supplanted by the use of plant ash as the main fluxing agent at the turn of the ninth century CE Defining primary production groups of plant ash glass has been a challenge due to the high variability of raw materials and the smaller scale of production Islamic Glass in the Making advocates a large scale archaeometric approach to the history of Islamic glassmaking to trace the developments in the production trade and consumption of vitreous materials between the eighth and twelfth centuries and to separate the norm from the exception It proposes compositional discriminants to distinguish regional production groups and provides insights into the organisation of the glass industry and commerce during the early Islamic period The interdisciplinary approach leads to a holistic understanding of the development of Islamic glass assemblages from the early Islamic period in Mesopotamia Central Asia Egypt Greater Syria and Iberia are evaluated and placed in the larger geopolitical context In doing so this book fills a gap in the present literature and advances a large scale approach to the history of Islamic glass Roman Glass Stuart J. Fleming, 1997-01-29 This lavishly illustrated book places glass in its social setting within the Roman household The volume was written to accompany the traveling exhibition Roman Glass Reflections on Cultural Change Through a series of vignettes the author tells the story of the development of the glass industry in the Roman Empire and the role of glass in the daily routines of the ancient Romans During the reign of Rome's first emperor Augustus 27 B C A D 14 as several well established industries such as pottery and textile making were being expanded the craft of glassmaking was adopted from the East turned into an industry and adapted to Roman taste By the mid first century A D glass rivaled pottery in the domestic marketplace It was used for tableware and storage containers to hold everything from preserved fish to fine perfumes Glass featured strongly in the Roman daily routine from the early morning when maids would apply perfumed lotions to their mistress in preparation for her social rounds to the late afternoon when slaves would bring platters of food bowls of fruit and jugs of wine all of glass to the supper table And there was a place for glass even in Roman funerary ritual because it was custom to include all manner of domestic items among the grave furnishings to add comfort to the afterlife Glassware and Glassworking in Thessaloniki Anastassios Ch.
