Towns in the Dark Gavin Speed, 2014-07-28 The focus of this book is to draw together still scattered data to chart and interpret the changing nature of life in towns from the late Roman period through to the mid Anglo Saxon period Did towns fail Were these ruinous sites really neglected by early Anglo Saxon settlers and leaders

Handbook for the Analysis of Micro-Particles in Archaeological Samples Amanda G. Henry, 2020-07-07 This handbook provides a resource for those already familiar with some kinds of micro particles who wish to learn more about others or for those just starting out in the study of microremains who wish to have a broad understanding about microscopic archaeology Topics covered in this handbook include diatom microfossils starch granules pollen grains phytoliths natural fibers volcanic glass minerals insect remains and feathers Archaeological investigations increasingly rely on specialist identification of microscopic remnants found in sites These micro particles can provide information about the site environment and human activities that may not be apparent from artifacts and materials preserved on the macro scale and have given us new and often high profile information about our past The investigation of this invisible archaeology that is invisible to the naked eye is still somewhat new and generally each kind of micro particle is studied individually Researchers become experts in a narrow range of micro particle types but may be less familiar with or even completely unaware of the multitude of other forms that are frequently encountered in archaeological samples This handbook's accessible approach is suitable for those at the beginner level

Settlement and Cemeteries at Mucking Sam Lucy, Christopher Evans, 2016-11-30 Excavations at Mucking Essex between 1965 and 1978 revealed extensive evidence for a multiphase rural Romano British settlement perhaps an estate center and five associated cemetery areas 170 burials with different burial areas reserved for different groups within the settlement The settlement demonstrated clear continuity from the preceding Iron Age occupation with unbroken sequences of artefacts and enclosures through the first century AD followed by rapid and extensive remodeling which included the laying out a Central Enclosure and an organized water supply with wells accompanied by the start of large scale pottery production After the mid second century AD the Central Enclosure was largely abandoned and settlement shifted its focus more to the Southern Enclosure system with a gradual decline though the 3rd and 4th centuries although continued burial pottery and artefactual deposition indicate that a form of settlement continued possibly with some low level pottery production Some of the latest Roman pottery was strongly associated with the earliest Anglo Saxon style pottery suggesting the existence of a terminal Roman settlement phase that essentially involved an Anglo Saxon community Given recent revisions of the chronology for the early Anglo Saxon period this casts an intriguing light on the transition with radical implications for understandings of this period Each of the cemetery areas was in use for a considerable length of time Taken as a whole Mucking was very much a component place complex it was its respective parts that fostered its many cemeteries whose diverse rites reflect the variability and roles of the settlement's evidently varied inhabitants A Biography of Power: Research and Excavations at the Iron Age 'oppidum' of Bagendon, Gloucestershire (1979-2017) Tom Moore, 2020-07-30 This book explores the changing nature of power and identity from the Iron Age to the Roman period in Britain It provides fresh insights into the origins and nature of one of the lesser known but perhaps most significant Late Iron Age oppida in Britain Bagendon in Gloucestershire

Exploring Human Behavior Through Isotope Analysis Melanie M. Beasley, Andrew D. Somerville, 2023-06-23 This edited volume compiles a series of chapters written by experts of isotopic analysis in order to highlight the utility of various isotope systems in the reconstruction of past human behaviors Rather than grouping contributions by specific isotopes or analytical techniques as many isotope review articles are arranged the volume organizes chapters by broadly defined themes of archaeological research These include paleodiet and life histories human animal interactions and migration and mobility In this sense the book is arranged with the intent of being as much question based as method based Chapters under these themes provide background information on the principles of the techniques and on the theoretical underpinnings of the research yet they are written with the non specialist in mind and attempt to convey these ideas clearly and succinctly In addition to the case studies and reviews three chapters provide greater context to the field of isotopic archaeology discussing its history basic principles and future potential The volume aims to serve as a reference source for students and practicing archaeologists seeking to apply isotopic studies to their own research projects or to act as a reader for courses in archaeological science Chapter 6 is available open access under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International License

Copyright Office,1974 Studies in Archaeological Conservation Chris Caple,Vicky Garlick,2020-12-14 Studies in Archaeological Conservation features a range of case studies that explore the techniques and approaches used in current conservation practice around the world and taken together provide a picture of present practice in some of the world leading museums and heritage organisations Archaeological excavations produce thousands of corroded and degraded fragments of metal ceramic and organic material that are transformed by archaeological conservators into the beautiful and informative objects that fill the cases of museums The knowledge and expertise required to undertake this transformation is demonstrated within this book in a series of 26 fascinating case studies in archaeological conservation and artefact investigation undertaken in laboratories around the world These case studies are contextualised by a detailed introductory chapter which explores the challenges presented by researching and conserving archaeological artefacts and details how the case studies illustrate the current state of the subject Studies in Archaeological Conservation is the first book for over a quarter of a century to show the range and diversity of archaeological conservation in this case through a series of case studies As a result the book will be of great interest to practising conservators conservation students and archaeologists around the world Pinning Down the Past Mike Corbishley,2014-04-17 In a relatively short period of time the pursuit of archaeology has evolved from an antiquarian interest to a specialised scientific activity Part of this evolution has always included the interest of the public and archaeologists efforts to educate them As each new method and technique is developed and each new specialism is created the challenge of making archaeology available as a learning resource grows with it Today for example the issues which surround archaeology and heritage such as the pressures of tourism on sites now form part of many formal educational curricula This book the first to deal with the subject in such depth examines the place of education and outreach within the wider archaeological community Written by one of Britain s leading archaeological educationalists it charts the sometimes difficult and painful growth and development of education and archaeology Packed full of informative and enlightening case studies from the circus at Colchester to Sutton Hoo and Hadrian s Wall this work examines exactly how we have reached the point we are at where that place is and suggests areas for future development By drawing upon many decades of experience at the front line of archaeological education the author has produced a key text that will play a major role in the on going development of the heritage industry Publisher s website The Oxford Handbook of the Archaeology of Childhood Sally Crawford,Dawn Hadley,Gillian Shepherd,2018-05-10 Real understanding of past societies is not possible without including children and yet they have been strangely invisible in the archaeological record Compelling explanation about past societies cannot be achieved without including and investigating children and childhood However marginal the traces of children s bodies and bricolage may seem compared to adults archaeological evidence of children and childhood can be found in the most astonishing places and spaces The archaeology of childhood is one of the most exciting and challenging areas for new discovery about past societies Children are part of every human society but childhood is a cultural construct Each society develops its own idea about what a childhood should be what children can or should do and how they are trained to take their place in the world Children also play a part in creating the archaeological record itself In this volume experts from around the world ask questions about childhood thresholds of age and growth childhood in the material culture the death of children and the intersection of the childhood and the social economic religious and political worlds of societies in the past
