Handbook of British Romanticism Ralf Haekel, 2017-09-11 The Handbook of British Romanticism is a state of the art investigation of Romantic literature and theory a field that probably changed more quickly and more fundamentally than any other traditional era in literary studies Since the early 1980s Romantic studies has widened its scope significantly The canon has been expanded hitherto ignored genres have been investigated and new topics of research explored After these profound changes intensified by the general crisis of literary theory since the turn of the millennium traditional concepts such as subjectivity imagination and the creative genius have lost their status as paradigms defining Romanticism The handbook will feature discussions of key concepts such as history class gender science and the use of media as well as a thorough account of the most central literary genres around the turn of the 19th century The focus of the book however will lie on a discussion of key literary texts in the light of the most recent theoretical developments Thus the Handbook of British Romanticism will provide students with an introduction to Romantic literature in general and literary scholars with a discussion of innovative and groundbreaking theoretical developments

Films and British National Identity Jeffrey Richards, 1997-09-15 This book seeks to examine the ways in which the cinema has defined mythified and disseminated British national identity during the course of the twentieth century It takes the form of a series of linked essays which examine chronologically thematically and by specific case studies of films stars and genres the complexities and ambiguities in the process of evolution and definition of the national identity It argues for the creation of a distinctive British national identity both in cinema and the wider culture But it also assesses the creation of alternative identities both ethnic and regional and examines the interaction of cinema and other cultural forms music literature and television

Romantic Ireland Volume 1 M. F. and B. McM.

Mansfield, 2018-01-21 ONE hundred or more years ago when Arthur Young first wrote his journal of a tour in Ireland those who had Ireland's welfare most at heart deplored the fact that her greatness was still practically unexplored and the early history of her brighter days excited no interest even among her own people Doctor Johnson felt this himself when he wrote I have long wished that Irish literature were cultivated as Ireland is known by tradition to be a seat of piety and learning and surely it would be very acceptable to be further informed regarding a people at once so ancient and illustrious It has been said too the words are taken from the mouth of a poor parish priest that the Celt is melting like the snow he lingers in little patches in the corner of the field and hands are stretched on every side It is human to stretch hands to fleeting things but as well might we try to retain the snow

Family Romance John Lanchester, 2008-01-29 The author of The Debt to Pleasure digs into his family's extraordinary past in a memoir as enthralling as his finest fiction It was only when his mother died that John Lanchester realized how little he really knew about his parents With the cache of letters and papers she left behind he set out to reconstruct just who his parents had been In doing so he did much more than trace the remarkable story of a reluctant international banker a secretive former nun and the life they shared he also gained extraordinary insight into his own nature and a deeper understanding of the universal push pull of family love and family loss Part detective work part evocation of character this is above all compelling storytelling

Travel and Colonialism in 21st Century Romantic Historical Fiction Paloma Fresno-Calleja, Hsu-Ming Teo, 2024-12-16 Romantic fiction has often involved stories of travel In narratives of the journey towards love romance often involves encounters with exotic places and peoples When history is invoked in such stories the past itself is exoticised and treated as other to the present to serve the purposes of romanticisation a narrative strategy by which all manner of things settings characters costumes customs consumables are made to perform a luxuriant otherness that amplifies the experience of love This volume questions the reparative function of Anglophone romantic historical fiction to ask can plots of travel and discourses of tourism empower women while narrating stories of healing for the wounds of the past This is the first volume to consider how romanticised and exoticised women s historical fiction not only serves the purposes of armchair travel but may also replicate colonial discourse unintentionally positioning readers as neocolonial neo Orientalist cultural voyeurs as well as voyagers

In Search of Ireland Brian Graham, 2002-11-01 In Search of Ireland argues that Ireland s political problems are created by conflicts and confusions of identity It brings together a number of distinguished contributors each of whom examines a particular aspect of Ireland s diverse cultural geography and history Issues covered include the changing definitions of Irishness the roles of class and gender in constructing traditional alignments of identity the role of ethnicity in Irish society the invention and imagining of Irish place the political implications of a pluralistic Ireland The contributors demonstrate that many people both inside and outside of Ireland continue to define themselves and their conflicts through simple sectarian stereotypes The authors argue that politicians and others must reject these outdated either/or representations and accommodate instead the fluidity of Irish identity James Anderson University of Newcastle Upon Tyne S J Connolly Queens s University Belfast Neville Douglas Queen s University Belfast Brian Graham University of Ulster

Medieval Romance and Material Culture Nicholas Perkins, 2015 Studies of how the physical manifests itself in medieval romance and medieval romances as objects themselves Medieval romance narratives glitter with the material objects that were valued and exchanged in late medieval society lovers rings and warriors swords holy relics and desirable or corrupted bodies Romance however is also a genre in which such objects make meaning on numerous levels and not always in predictable ways These new essays examine from diverse perspectives how romances respond to material culture but also show how romance as a genre helps to constitute and transmit that culture Focusing on romances circulating in Britain and Ireland between the twelfth and sixteenth centuries individual chapters address such questions as the relationship between objects and protagonists in romance narrative the materiality of male and female bodies the interaction between visual and verbal representations of romance poetic form and manuscript textuality and how a nineteenth century edition of medieval romances provoked artists to homage and satire NICHOLAS PERKINS is Associate Professor and Tutor in English at St Hugh s College University of Oxford Contributors Siobhain Bly Calkin Nancy Mason Bradbury Aisling Byrne Anna Caughey Neil Cartlidge Mark Cruse Morgan Dickson Rosalind Field Elliot Kendall Megan G Leitch Henrike Manuwald Nicholas Perkins Ad Putter Raluca L Radulescu Robert Allen Rouse

The Love-charm of Bombs Lara Feigel, 2013-07-09 The nightly routine of sirens barrage the probing raider the unmistakable engine the bomb bursts moving nearer and then moving away hold one like a love charm Graham Greene When the first bombs fell on London in August 1940 the city was transformed overnight into a strange kind of battlefield For most Londoners the sirens guns planes and bombs brought sleepless nights fear and loss But for a group of writers the war became an incomparably vivid source of inspiration the blazing streets scenes of exhilaration in which fear could transmute into love In this powerful chronicle of literary life under the Blitz Lara Feigel vividly conjures the lives of five prominent writers Elizabeth Bowen Graham Greene Rose Macaulay Hilde Spiel and the novelist Henry Green Starting with a sparkingly detailed recreation of a single night of September 1940 the narrative traces the tempestuous experiences of these five figures through five years in London and Ireland followed by postwar Vienna and Berlin Volunteering to drive ambulances patrol the streets and fight fires the protagonists all exhibited a unified spirit of a nation under siege but as individuals their emotions were more volatile As the sky whistled and the ground shook nerves were tested loyalties examined and torrid affairs undertaken Literary historian and journalist Feigel brilliantly and beautifully interweaves the letters diaries journalism and fiction of her writers with official records to chart the history of a burning world experienced through the eyes of extraordinary individuals

The gothic novel in Ireland, c. 1760-1829 Christina Morin, 2018-05-11 This electronic version has been made available under a

Creative Commons BY NC ND open access license The gothic novel in Ireland c 1760 1829 offers a compelling account of the development of gothic literature in late eighteenth and early nineteenth century Ireland Countering traditional scholarly views of the rise of the gothic novel on the one hand and on the other Irish Romantic literature this study persuasively re integrates a body of now overlooked works into the history of the literary gothic as it emerged across Ireland Britain and Europe between 1760 and 1829 Its twinned quantitative and qualitative analysis of neglected Irish texts produces a new formal generic and ideological map of gothic literary production in this period persuasively positioning Irish works and authors at the centre of a new critical paradigm with which to understand both Irish Romantic and gothic literary production
