

HENRI MATISSE

Introduction

Henri Matisse (1869-1954) was a French painter, sculptor, and printmaker. He is best known for his bold use of color and his simplified, expressive forms. Matisse was a leading figure in the Fauvism movement, which emphasized the use of color over realistic representation. His work often depicted scenes of everyday life, and he was particularly interested in the human figure. Matisse's art was characterized by a sense of balance and harmony, and his use of color was often described as "vibrant" and "joyful".
