Mining in the New World Carlos Prieto,1973      U.S. Geological Survey Professional Paper ,1963      Protecting Yellowstone Michael J. Yochim,2013-03-15 Yellowstone National Park looks like a pristine western landscape populated by its wild inhabitants bison grizzly bears and wolves But the bison do not always range freely snowmobile noise intrudes upon the park s profound winter silence and some tourist villages are located in prime grizzly bear habitat Despite these problems the National Park Service has succeeded in reintroducing wolves allowing wildfires to play their natural role in park forests and prohibiting a gold mine that would be present in other more typical western landscapes Each of these issues bison snowmobiles grizzly bears wolves fires and the New World Mine was the center of a recent policy making controversy involving federal politicians robust debate with interested stakeholders and discussions about the relevant science Yet the outcomes of the controversies varied considerably depending on politics science how well park managers allied themselves with external interests and public thinking about the effects of park proposals on their access and economies Michael Yochim examines the primary influences upon contemporary national park policy making and considers how those influences shaped or constrained the final policy In addition Yochim considers how park managers may best work within the contemporary policy making context to preserve national parks

Reestablishing Natural Succession on Acidic Mine Spoils at High Elevation Ray W. Brown,2003 Methods for restoring native plant communities on acidic mine spoils at high elevations were evaluated in a gbsdemonstration area gcs in the New World Mining District of southern Montana Research plots installed in 1976 were assessed for 22 years and compared with adjacent native reference plant communities A 1 5 acre 0 61 ha area of mine spoils was shaped and treated with hydrated lime organic matter and fertilizer The area was then seeded heavily with five native grasses collected from adjacent native plant communities Natural seed rain transplanting refertilization and use of introduced species were also studied During periods of fertilization biomass and cover were twofold greater than in adjacent native reference communities in some years but then rapidly declined to levels observed in native reference communities Natural succession was accelerating within the demonstration area toward formation of a native community with characteristics similar to adjacent reference areas Soil genesis was progressing and a soil gbsA gcs horizon was developing Use of native seral species appears necessary for long term formation of a self sustaining natural community Both transplanting and natural seed rain on treated spoils resulted in significantly lower biomass and cover levels than on the seeded area Our data demonstrate that acidic mine spoils such as in the New World area can be treated successfully in place with lime organic matter and fertilizer and then seeded with a mixture of native seral grasses followed by surface mulching with erosion blanket Capping with native soils is unnecessary Reclamation principles and procedures are summarized      Yellowstone Jack Robert V. Goss,2025-09-02 Jack Baronett 1829 1906 was an important figure in the history of Yellowstone National Park In his early life he traveled the world prospecting and mining in Australia Africa China and Alaska He traveled to the Yellowstone region in 1864 eight years before the Park was established to join other early prospectors searching for gold and exploring the geyser basins His first claim to fame came in 1869 when he and a partner rescued Truman Everts a lost near death member of the Washburn Yellowstone expedition After 1872 he served as early assistant superintendent in Yellowstone a scout for the US Army and one of the founders of Cooke City MT As a notable guide in the park his patrons included Generals Sherman Sheridan and Strong President Chester Arthur George Bird Grinnell and Wiliam Henry Jackson They all used Baronett s Bridge the first bridge built over the Yellowstone River in 1871 In 1875 Baronett was deputized as a US Marshall making him the first federal law enforcement officer in the park He chased horse thieves and protected the area from poachers and outlaws Historians have dubbed Baronett prospector miner explorer adventurer soldier of fortune scout hunter guide and Indian fighter all monikers befitting his adventurous wanderlust life Despite all these wanderings he eventually discovered what would be his true home
