Song David Pierce, 2005-01-01 In this absorbing analysis of modern Irish writing an acknowledged expert considers the hybrid character of modern Irish writing to show how language culture and history have been affected by the colonial encounter between Ireland and Britain Examining the great themes of loss and struggle David Pierce traces the impact on Irish writing of the Great Famine and cultural nationalism and considers the way the work of Ireland's two leading writers W B Yeats and James Joyce complicate and elucidate our view of the harp and the crown The book draws a contrast between the West of Ireland in the 1930s when the new Irish State enjoyed its first full independent decade and the North of Ireland in the 1980s when the spectre of British imperialism threatened the stability of Ireland Pierce then surveys contemporary Irish writing and reflects on the legacy of the colonial encounter and on the passage to a postmodern or postnationalist Ireland in the work of such crucial living writers as John Banville Derek Mahon and John McGahern Gender and Imperialism

Clare Midgley, 1998-03-15 This book marks an important new intervention into a vibrant area of scholarship creating a dialogue between the histories of imperialism and of women and gender By engaging critically with both traditional British imperial history and colonial discourse analysis the essays demonstrate how feminist historians can play a central role in creating new histories of British imperialism Chronologically the focus is on the late eighteenth to early twentieth centuries while geographically the essays range from the Caribbean to Australia and span India Africa Ireland and Britain itself Topics explored include the question of female agency in imperial contexts the relationships between feminism and nationalism and questions of sexuality masculinity and imperial power Rhetoric and Violence in Northern Ireland, 1968-98 P.

Breaking Enmities P. Grant, 2016-07-27 This book discusses relationships among religion literature and ethnicity in Northern Ireland since 1967 The introduction provides a theoretical account of how literature engages sectarian prejudices allowing these to be played out in ways that can help to dissolve or mitigate the alienating effects of traditional enmities Subsequent chapters deal with identity endogamy education gender and imprisonment Each chapter combines an analysis of specific cultural issues with a critical assessment of relevant works by key authors A conclusion offers an assessment of relationships between Northern Ireland and other modern societies facing analogous problems in a post modern world marked by rapid globalisation

Our Own Devices Ewan Morris, 2005 National symbols have long been highly contentious in Ireland and they remain so today While there have been a number of studies which have examined the role of symbols in the contemporary conflict in Northern Ireland as yet there has been no detailed study of debates about national symbols in twentieth century Ireland This book fills that gap outlining the historical background to the continuing controversy about national symbols in Ireland and shedding new light on the deep political divisions which have marked Irish society throughout this century Our Own Devices focuses on the crucial period from 1922 to 1939 which saw the creation and consolidation of new governments in the Irish Free State and Northern Ireland It also examines in detail the selection of official symbols of state by governments in both parts of Ireland and public responses to those symbols Having discussed the conflicts over symbols which took place in the early decades of the two states the book concludes by bringing the story up to date and relating earlier controversies about national symbols to current debates about the role of symbols in conflict and peacemaking in Northern Ireland This study is a pioneering work in this relatively new area of Irish history and is based on extensive original research using many sources which have not previously been cited in published works

Art, Nation and Gender Sighle Bhreathnach-Lynch, 2018-01-18 This title was first published in 2003 The essay collection explores the conjunctions of nation gender and visual representation in a number of countries including Ireland Scotland Britain Canada Finland Russia and Germany during the nineteenth and twentieth centuries The contributors show visual imagery to be a particularly productive focus for analysing the intersections of nation and gender since the nation and nationalism as abstract concepts have to be embodied in ways that make them imaginable especially through the means of art They explore how allegorical female figures personify the nation across a wide range of visual media from sculpture to political cartoons and how national architectures may also be gendered They show how through such representations art reveals the ethno cultural bases of nationalisms Through the study of such images the essays in this volume cast new light on the significance of gender in the construction of nationalist ideology and the constitution of the nation state In tackling the conjunctions of nation gender and visual representation the case studies presented in this publication can be seen to provide exciting new perspectives on the study of nations of gender and the history of art The range of countries chosen and the variety of images scrutinised create a broad arena for further debate

Shattering Silence Begoña Aretxaga, 2020-09-01 This book the first feminist ethnography of the violence in Northern Ireland is an analysis of a political conflict through the lens of gender The case in point is the working class Catholic resistance to British rule in Northern Ireland During the 1970s women in Catholic nationalist districts of Belfast organized themselves into street committees and led popular forms of resistance against the policies of the government of Northern Ireland and after its demise against those of the British In the abundant literature on the conflict however the political tactics of nationalist women have passed virtually unnoticed Begoña Aretxaga argues here that these hitherto invisible practices were an integral part of the social dynamic of the conflict and had important implications for the broader organization of nationalist forms of resistance and gender relationships Combining interpretative anthropology and poststructuralist feminist theory Aretxaga contributes not only to anthropology and feminist studies but also to research on ethnic and social conflict by showing the gendered constitution of political violence She goes further than asserting that violence affects men and women differently by arguing that the manners in which violence is gendered are not fixed but constantly shifting depending on the contingencies of history social class and ethnic identity Thus any attempt at subverting gender inequality is necessarily colored by other dimensions of political experience Women, States and Nationalism Sita

Ranchod-Nilsson, Mary Ann Tetreault, 2003-09-02 Women States and Nationalism counters this attitude and examines the many and contradictory ways in which women negotiate their places in the nation The volume includes theoretical essays that explore the multiple ways in which the very concept of nation is based upon notions of family sexuality and gender power which are often overlooked or downplayed by male stream scholarship It gathers together an outstanding panel of feminist scholars and area studies specialists who through a series of focused case studies analyse diverse issues which include gender and sectarian conflict in Northern Ireland the paradox of Israeli women soldiers women civic duty and the military in the USA the Hindu Right in India power agency and representation in Zimbabwe political identity and heterosexism This timely volume is a highly valuable resource for students and scholars of Nationalism Internationalism Studies and Women's Studies A New History of Ireland Volume VII J.
