Portraits Of Medieval And Renaissance Living Essays In Memory Of David Herlihy:

Portraits of Medieval and Renaissance Living Samuel Kline Cohn, Steven Epstein, David Herlihy, 1996 A social history of the Middle Ages and Renaissance War, Politics and Finance in Late Medieval English Towns Christian Drummond Liddy, 2005 The strengthening of ties between crown and locality in the fourteenth century is epitomised by the relationships between York and Bristol then amongst the largest and wealthiest urban communities in England and the crown This book combines a detailed study of the individuals who ruled Bristol and York at the time with a close analysis of the texts which illustrate the relationship between the two cities and the king thus offering a new perspective on relations between town and crown in late medieval England Beginning with an analysis of the various demands financial political and commercial made upon the towns by the Hundred Years War the author argues that such pressures facilitated the development of a partnership in government between the crown and the two towns meaning that the elite inhabitants became increasingly important in national affairs The book goes on to explore in detail the nature of urban aspirations within the kingdom arguing that the royal charters granting the towns their coveted county status were crucial in binding their ruling elites into the apparatus of royal government and giving them a powerful voice in national politics A Companion to the Medieval World Carol

Fifteenth-Century Italy Giuliano Mori, 2024 While humanists agreed on identifying the main requirement of the historical genre with truthfulness they disagreed on their notions of historical truth Some authors equated historical truth with verisimilitude thus harmonizing the quest for truth with other ingredients of their histories such as their political utility and rhetorical aptness Others instead rejected the notion of verisimilitude identifying historical truth with factuality Accordingly

they sought to produce bare and exhaustive accounts of all the things that pertained to their historical explorations often resorting to innovative disciplines such as archeology philology and the history of institutions The humanist historiographical debate is especially significant because the notion of verisimilitude encompassed crucial elements required for the development of methods of critical assessment By perceiving verisimilitude and factuality as irreconcilable Quattrocento humanists reached a critical impasse those who were interested in factual truth mostly lacked the means to ascertain it while those that developed embryonic notions of historical criticism were not eminently concerned with the factual account of the past This critical weakness exposed humanists to considerable risks including that of accepting non verisimilar historical forgeries passed off as factual Such forgeries eventually served as a testing ground for sixteenth and seventeenth century scholars who sought to restore factual truth by means of critical criteria grounded in verisimilitude thus overcoming the humanist impasse

Historical Truth in Fifteenth Century Italy addresses Renaissance history philosophy rhetoric and jurisprudence to shed light on how humanists conceptualized truth and more specifically historical truth

Medieval Sensibilities Damien Boquet, Piroska Nagy, 2018-07-26 What do we know of the emotional life of the Middle Ages Though a long neglected subject a multitude of sources spiritual and secular literature iconography chronicles as well as theological and medical works provide clues to the central role emotions played in medieval society In this work historians Damien Boquet and Piroska Nagy delve into a rich variety of texts and images to reveal the many and nuanced experiences of emotion during the Middle Ages from the demonstrative shame of a saint to a nobleman's fear of embarrassment from the enthusiasm of a crusading band to the fear of a town threatened by the approach of war or plague Boquet and Nagy show how these outbursts of joy and pain while universal expressions must be understood within the specific context of medieval society During the Middle Ages a Christian model of affectivity was formed in the laboratory of the monasteries one which gradually seeped into wider society interacting with the sensibilities of courtly culture and other forms of expression Bouquet and Nagy bring a thousand years of history to life demonstrating how the study of emotions in medieval society can also allow us to understand better our own social outlooks and customs

The Year 1000 M. Frassetto, 2016-09-27 This collection of new essays examines the long standing question of apocalyptic expectations around the turn of the first millennium Including works by scholars of medieval history literature and religion this book argues that apocalyptic expectations did exist around the year 1000 It provides a more balanced and nuanced approach to the issue than the traditional views that either identify a time of fear the terrors of the year 1000 or deny that awareness of the millennium existed This book instead recognizes that there were a variety of responses to the eschatological years 1000 and 1033 and that these responses contributed to the broader social and religious developments associated with the birth of European civilization
