Motion Picture Herald, 1927 America's Corporate Art Jerome Christensen, 2012-01-11 Contrary to theories of single person authorship America's Corporate Art argues that the corporate studio is the author of Hollywood motion pictures both during the classical era of the studio system and beyond when studios became players in global dramas staged by massive entertainment conglomerates Hollywood movies are examples of a commodity that until the digital age was rare a self advertising artifact that markets the studio's brand in the very act of consumption The book covers the history of corporate authorship through the antithetical visions of two of the most dominant Hollywood studios Warner Bros and MGM During the classical era these studios promoted their brands as competing social visions in strategically significant pictures such as MGM's Singin in the Rain and Warner's The Fountainhead Christensen follows the studios divergent fates as MGM declined into a valuable and portable logo while Warner Bros employed Batman JFK and You've Got Mail to seal deals that made it the biggest entertainment corporation in the world The book concludes with an analysis of the Disney Pixar merger and the first two Toy Story movies in light of the recent judicial extension of constitutional rights of the corporate person

Erish, 2021-06-08 Winner of the 2022 Peter C Rollins Book Award and the 2022 Browne Best Edited Reference Primary Source Work in Popular and American Culture Award In Vitagraph America's First Great Motion Picture Studio Andrew A Erish provides a comprehensive examination and reassessment of the company most responsible for defining and popularizing the American movie This history challenges long accepted Hollywood mythology that Paramount and Fox invented the feature film that Universal created the star system and that these companies along with MGM and Warner Bros developed motion pictures into a multimillion dollar business In fact the truth about Vitagraph is far more interesting than the myths that later moguls propagated about themselves Established in 1897 by J Stuart Blackton and Albert E Smith Vitagraph was the leading producer of motion pictures for much of the silent era Vitagraph established America's studio system a division of labor utilizing specialized craftspeople and artists and developed fundamental aspects of American movies from framing lighting and performance style to emphasizing character driven comedy and drama in stories that respected and sometimes poked fun at every demographic of Vitagraph's vast audience For most of its existence America's most influential studio was headquartered in Brooklyn New York before relocating to Hollywood A historically rigorous and thorough account of the most influential producer of American motion pictures during the silent era Erish draws on valuable primary material long overlooked by other historians to introduce readers to the fascinating forgotten pioneers of Vitagraph

Art, Science, and Diplomacy: A Study of the Visual Images of the Macartney Embassy to China, 1793 Shanshan Chen,2023-04-30

This book examines how the Embassy members approached selected and represented information and how in doing so they helped to shape European perceptions of China The Macartney Embassy of 1793 was the first British diplomatic mission to China seeking to open ties between the two empires As part of the mission the British government commissioned writers and artists to chronicle the geography and culture of a civilization that had until then been shrouded in mystery A central focus of the book is the artwork itself which provides a window into the diplomatic artistic and scientific viewpoints underlying the mission Drawing on archival research the study recreates the processes through which the Embassy's draughtsmen scientists and diplomats collaborated to represent the visual images and how the materials were reworked for publication in London The finished product demonstrates that the artists offered a distinct viewpoint in the representation of China sometimes differing from the textual accounts by blending scientific elements and artistic aesthetics in order to demystify China and make it more knowable to a British audience It was in the interposition of text and image that the British public formulated an ambivalent perception of China that embraced both admiration and disdain In addition to the scholars the book targets general readers who are interested in global art and history and East West interactions It contains important images with detailed visual and historical analysis that enable readers to acquire knowledge on how the British represented China and how that image helped to shape the European perception of China during the British global expansion in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries and beyond
