Reality Of Foreign Investments:

Myths and Realities of Foreign Investment in Poor Countries John M. Rothgeb, 1989-06 This book systematically explores the effects upon underdeveloped countries of direct foreign investments made by multinational corporations The author pays particular attention to themes prevalent in the international political economy literature that depict foreign investment as alternately aiding or hindering economic development in the Third World In constructing his analysis Rothgeb treats the relationship between the multinational corporation and the underdeveloped host state as a political relationship demonstrating that the results of foreign investment depend in large part upon the differing strengths of the actors in the relationship and how they use the advantages derived from their power Following an introductory chapter which reviews the current status of research on the subject Rothgeb turns to a consideration of how foreign investments affect host state foreign policy He then addresses the domestic political and social effects of foreign investment and identifies four basic conceptions of the role played by foreign investment Finally Rothgeb focuses on economic growth analyzing the ways in which multinational firms affect growth via their effects on capital availability the degree to which the government plays a leading role in managing society and changes in the composition of the local labor force The author's conclusions regarding the political effects of foreign investment should be required reading for students of economic development and international relations as well as for policymakers and executives of multinational firms

Weigel, 1997-01-01 The report reviews lessons from the International Finance Corporation's IFC investment and advisory experience in the developing world which show the interactions between policy frameworks and the volume and structure of foreign direct investments FDI Case studies show how the Corporation promotes successful project structures and regulatory changes as it tries to attain the strongest development impact for investments In developing countries FDI has flowed mainly into manufacturing and processing industries In the past investment attractiveness had been closely linked to possession of natural resources or a large domestic market while production and trade globalization competitiveness as a location for investment and exporting have become the main determinants of attractiveness Sources of FDI in the past came almost exclusively from industrial countries though recently those sources have widened emerging from developing countries in their own right and for their own regions IFC as an international initiative to promote FDI in developing countries is liable to promote bilateral trade agreements bilateral and multilateral financial institutions and investment promotion programs its advisory role may vary from diagnostic studies overviewing constraints to FDI to investment policy studies giving specific solutions on either changes or strategies The study further looks at how policy environment is set and at finding investor opportunities through project financing largely structured as joint ventures The inherent fragile nature of joint ventures restricts foreign ownership thus limiting project structures however careful project design has led to successful operations by ensuring management and financial arrangements Still to maximize benefits an unfinished agenda of policy reform remains and as more countries open to FDI this integration will lead to an overall increase in FDI flows Trade and Investment Between the United States and Russia/Commonwealth of Independent States (CIS) United States.
