

At a second hearing on abandonment testimony was presented to show that only 26.6 percent of the railroad's revenue came from intrastate shipments, with the result that the yearly operating deficit would be around $25,000 if the line were forced to continue for this traffic alone.¹²² P. H. Potter, the law examiner for the Railroad Commission, remarked at the hearing that there was little reason for the whole proceedings before the commission. He tendered the opinion that if the Railroad Commission forced intrastate operations alone, the railroad would lose so much money that the courts of the State would not uphold the decision, as they would consider it confiscation of property.¹²³ Evidently the railroad's owners reasoned similarly, for eighteen days before the hearings were held at Madison, the Mineral Point and Northern had run its last train.¹²⁴

The Milwaukee Journal wrote a little article about the scene at Mineral Point when the last train arrived. Under a heading, "Engine Chugs Home, Abandon Little Road," the article reported the statements of several members of the crew. The engineer remarked that the trip took six hours, the usual pace, and the master mechanic commented: "After a thing has been around 26 years, a person becomes attached to it. The people around here are sentimental about the MP&N, and I don't blame them. I feel kind of bad myself."

The people may have been sentimental, but no one was present for the last chance to ride the Mineral Point and Northern. The trip was made without passengers or freight. Only Assistant General Manager Martin and Traffic Manager R. E. Smart were on board with the crew for the last ride on the little railroad.¹²⁵

The property of the Mineral Point and Northern was sold at auction on June 14,

1930, on the courthouse steps at Dodgeville. There were no buyers of the whole property, but when it was divided into parcels, the rolling stock, rails, ties, tools, and bridges were sold as a unit for $27,000 to L. B. Foster and Company of Chicago, who intended to junk the equipment. The stations and land were sold separately, and all the purchasers were given until January 1, 1931, to remove their property.¹²⁷

In September, 1930, the zinc oxide plant was closed, and Mineral Point became completely dependent upon agriculture as the basis for its economy. Wild flowers and long grasses slowly covered the mining slopes,¹²⁸ and the right of way of the Mineral Point and Northern became a twenty-six-mile strip of neglected land, a sorry tribute to days gone by.

During the twenty-five years of the Mineral Point and Northern operation, the zinc interests had not been concerned about the welfare of the farmers. The status of the farmer was a matter of indifference to the zinc operator, and the farmer probably felt little interest in the affairs of the mining segment of the economy. But when the zinc mines closed, the farmer began to realize the importance of the local industry to his life. It had been the industry that had sustained such services as the Mineral Point and Northern. The farmer protested at commission hearings, but he was to lose his case, for the economy had developed to a point at which the agrarian could no longer support such a convenience as a railroad without the substantial aid of industry. The local residents protested, but the Mineral Point and Northern was abandoned, just as countless other short line railroads were abandoned in the same era.

All that is left is the right of way, serving as a symbol of a venture that had converted a region's dreams into temporary reality.

Questioning Ethics Mark Dooley, Richard Kearney, 2002-09-11 Questioning Ethics offers an unsurpassed overview of the state of ethical thinking today by some of the world's foremost philosophers such as Habermas, MacIntyre, Ricoeur, and Kristeva. A History of the Methodist Church in Great Britain, Volume Four Rupert E. Davies, A. Raymond George, Gordon Rupp, 2017-06-14 With this volume the publication of A History of the Methodist Church in Great Britain comes to its appointed end. The project of writing it was initiated by the Methodist Conference of 1953 and the lapse of time since then has made it possible to include at appropriate points the results of the continuing research into the origins and nature of Methodism but the chance and changes of this mortal life which are bound to impinge on the progress of so complex an enterprise together with the heavy involvement of all the contributors in ecclesiastical, ecumenical, and academic affairs have made this period much longer than the General Editors would have wished. Morality and the Emotions Justin Oakley, 2020-07-20 Originally published in 1992, this book attacks many recent philosophical and psychological theories of the emotions and argues that our emotions themselves have intrinsic moral significance. He demonstrates that a proper understanding of the emotions reveals the fundamental role they play in our moral lives and the practical consequences that arise from being morally responsible for our emotions. A Market Process Theory of the Firm Mateusz Machaj, 2021-07-14 Neoclassical economics has been criticized from various angles by orthodox schools. The same can be said about its particular branch, the theory of the firm. This book demonstrates how a successful theory of the firm can be presented without flawed notions of a neoclassical framework and used to comprehend actual business history. The author argues that we should start from the assumption that businesses are inevitably imponderable as that is their nature in the process of economic evolution. The book offers an in-depth exploration of neoclassical limitations by examining each of the small details associated with the famous MR MC rule. It follows a step-by-step approach which starts off with neoclassical assumptions and then moves into more empirically sound theory based on modeling logic and rooted in real-world examples. The author presents a novel discussion on the size of the firm both in terms of classifying a firm's expansion and about the factors that limit the size of the firm and argues how formal pricing theory can be built using more indeterminate assumptions about firms. Further, there is a discussion on how firms are rooted in amorphous industries which helps to explain economic progress better by emphasizing the importance of economic experiments mistakes and bankruptcies This is a valuable reference for scholars and researchers who are interested in a range of topics from microeconomics through pricing theory to industrial organization history of economic thought and managerial economics

Reason, Community and Religious Tradition Scott Matthews,2017-10-05 This title was first published in 2001 Reason Community and Religious Tradition examines key questions about the relationship of rationality to its contexts by tracing the early history of the so called ontological argument The book follows Anselm s Proslogion from its origins in the private devotional context of an eleventh century monastery to its reception in the public and adversarial contexts of the friars schools in the thirteenth century Using unpublished manuscript evidence from the Dominican and Franciscan schools at Oxford Paris and Bologna in the thirteenth century Matthews argues that the debate over Anselm s argument embodied the broader religious differences between the Franciscan and Dominican communities By comparing the most famous figures of the period with their lesser known contemporaries Matthews argues that the Friars thought as communities and developed as traditions as they developed their arguments This book will interest anyone concerned with the nature of rationality and its relationship to communities and traditions and what this entails for rational debate across cultural divides In particular it offers a fresh perspective on traditional approaches to the rationality of religion and religious belief Saturday Review
