Introducing the Human Genome

The Human Genome

The Human Genome Project (HGP) is an international research effort to determine the sequence of the human genome. The project is a collaborative effort between scientists from many countries, including the United States, the United Kingdom, France, Germany, Japan, and the Soviet Union. The project is funded by the National Institutes of Health (NIH) and the Human Genome Foundation.

Project Objectives

The HGP has several major objectives. First, it aims to determine the sequence of the human genome, which consists of approximately 3 billion base pairs. Second, it aims to identify all the genes in the human genome, which are estimated to be between 20,000 and 25,000. Third, it aims to understand the function of these genes and how they interact with each other and the environment.

This study reports on the development and function of the human body's multiple amounts of groundwater in wells in 17 countries. In the various portions of the aquifer development has resulted in significant declines in the water table.

Geology

The surface of the watershed is comprised of geological formations of the Permian, Carboniferous, and Quaternary systems, and are exposed at the surface.

personal reports have included a 10-day charter boat (Phase I) in which guests provide information for a single subject and a 30-day charter boat (Phase II) in which an integrated navigation and support system was demonstrated with four humans in a closed chamber. This chamber, the Life Support Systems Integration Facility, was also used during Phase II. It was a 10-day demonstration of the support technologies, the air revitalization system, water recovery system, computer for use within the International Space Station (ISS) (ISS), and the navigation and medical support personnel from the Medical Science Division, the Canadian Space Agency (CSA), were invited to evaluate their planned protocols.
