Discussing the future of research in public administration (PA) is more than just listing topics for research which are inspired by possible future challenges for the public sector. Even if national contexts determine a strong path dependency for research agendas, there are four major trends which affect the future of PA research: Europeanisation, reform agendas, globalisation issues, and marketisation of research. A crucial element in the debate is to know what the specific European voice is and should be in PA research. For this purpose it is necessary to explicitly organise research in PA.

Information-Finding and the Research Process Antony E. Simpson, 1993-12-07
This guide to information finding sources and techniques is attuned to the needs of researchers in all the social and behavioral sciences with a particular focus on public administration and related fields. This guide is unique in its analyses of how to design the research process in an evolving manner using approaches that reflect combinations of models, methods and data sources. This guide is also comprehensive in its coverage of a broad spectrum of the important primary and secondary source materials in all their current forms. Students and researchers in the policy sciences especially at the graduate level will find this research and reference guide an essential one. Simpson's broadly conceived guide covers sources and methods of approach to doing social science research. The book opens with an analysis of information finding and public administration as a special and disparate series of fields for study. Subsequent chapters discuss research strategies and designs and offer annotative bibliographies evaluating the usefulness of primary and secondary sources, examining guides to the literature, the conventional library catalog, journal literature indexing and abstracting services, computer searches, separately published bibliographies, public statistics, machine readable data files, government documents, sources of methodology and research instruments, other sources of information, archives and other primary sources and annual reviews. This topical and logically developed set of chapters makes the guide easy to use and a general subject index makes this reference most accessible.

Taking Language Seriously Jay D. White, 1999
Challenging scholars in public administration to be cognizant of the philosophical underpinnings of their field, White, public administration U of Nebraska Omaha, argues that the logic of applied research in this discipline resembles storytelling more than traditional social science. With a nod to postmodernism, actually an entire chapter his case for this narrative theory of knowledge is built by showing how inquiry into complex problems is grounded in language discourse and rationality and how the logical structure of explanatory, interpretive and critical research are equally legitimate depending on the nature of the question.
