Research Traditions In Marketing:

Research traditions in marketing Gilles Laurent, Gary L. Lilien, Bernard Pras, 2012-12-06 Divergence A Source of Creative Thinking The outstanding job accomplished by Bernard Gary and Gilles is really praiseworthy not only did they succeed in completing within a remarkably short span of time the editing of the contributions to the conference that marked the 20th Anniversary of the European Institute for Advanced Studies in Management they have also managed to elicit numerous insightful comments from a host of dashing young scholars as well as from the fortunate few established authorities whose findings have long become leading articles in the best academic journals who now chair those journals editorial boards and after whom great scientific awards have been named In so doing our dedicated triumvirate has blended together pieces of diverse research traditions some of them quite puzzling and mixed significantly differentiated styles of expression The controversial display of self confidence by some distinguished colleagues the amazingly emotional good old memories revived by their peers the scapegoat finding and moralizing confessions produced by some of their disciples together with the detached systematic rigidity of some others all combine to produce a multivarious patchwork that may well prove the existence of a marketing scholar lifecycle This cartoon like four class typology might even make it worth the reader's while to indulge in some guesswork to discover the sequence of the four stages as an exercise and then partition the author population accordingly

Naert, 2013-06-29 This book is about marketing models and the process of model building Our primary focus is on models that can be used by managers to support marketing decisions It has long been known that simple models usually outperform judgments in predicting outcomes in a wide variety of contexts For example models of judgments tend to provide better forecasts of the outcomes than the judgments themselves because the model eliminates the noise in judgments And since judgments never fully reflect the complexities of the many forces that influence outcomes it is easy to see why models of actual outcomes should be very attractive to marketing decision makers Thus appropriately constructed models can provide insights about structural relations between marketing variables Since models explicate the relations both the process of model building and the model that ultimately results can improve the quality of marketing decisions Managers often use rules of thumb for decisions For example a brand manager will have defined a specific set of alternative brands as the competitive set within a product category Usually this set is based on perceived similarities in brand characteristics advertising messages etc If a new marketing initiative occurs for one of the other brands the brand manager will have a strong inclination to react The reaction is partly based on the manager's desire to maintain some competitive parity in the marketing variables
