High-Level Adaptation and Aftereffects Rocco Palumbo,Stefania D'Ascenzo,Luca Tommasi,2017-04-28 Aftereffects generally occur after a prolonged exposure adaptation to a first stimulus possessing one given property followed by presentation of a stimulus bearing a neutral value of that property The aftereffect consists in a change in appearance of the neutral stimulus following the adapter compared to the appearance of the neutral stimulus when it is perceived without any previous exposure to the adapter The transient phenomena of perceptual aftereffects are believed to depend on the activation of neuron populations that respond selectively to a given property of the stimuli Studying how adaptation occurs which stimulus properties are sensitive to it which timings are necessary whether individual differences modulate its occurrence has thus become an indirect way to probe the plasticity of sensory functions in the nervous system recently extending to more cognitive and representational aspects of neural coding In the last two decades indeed it has been demonstrated that aftereffects occur not only for low level properties of stimuli such as motion color or orientation but also for high level properties Many studies have proven that high level proprieties of the stimuli e g gender identity ethnicity or age of a face or a voice are sensitive to this phenomenon It has been shown for example that the prolonged exposure to a female or male face produces a gender misperception in the opposite direction when an androgynous face is shown after the adapter Furthermore recent studies have also shown that aftereffects are not strictly contingent upon the physical features that make up stimuli but they seem to run across the high level proprieties subjects are adapted to These evidences are supported by cross category adaptation studies which underlie how aftereffects occur even across stimuli that do not share physical features e g bodies and faces but that instead share common higher level properties such as gender Given the growing body of research focused on adaptation and aftereffects in high level perception at the boundaries with perceptual learning attention and cognition the purpose of this topic is to provide a picture of the state of the art relative to the specific phenomena of adaptation in high level perceptual processing

The VR Book Jason Jerald, 2015-09-01 This is a strong foundation of human centric virtual reality design for anyone and everyone involved in creating VR experiences. Without a clear understanding of the human side of virtual reality, VR the experience will always fail. The VR Book bridges this gap by focusing on human centered design. Creating compelling VR applications is an incredibly complex challenge. When done well, these experiences can be brilliant and pleasurable, but when done badly, they can result in frustration and sickness. Whereas limitations of technology can cause bad VR, execution problems are oftentimes caused by a lack of understanding human perception, interaction design principles and real users. This book focuses on the human elements of VR, such as how users perceive and intuitively interact with various forms of reality, causes of VR sickness, creating useful and pleasing content and how to design and iterate upon effective VR applications. This book is not just for VR designers, it is for managers, programmers, artists, psychologists, engineers, students, educators and user experience professionals. It is for the entire VR team as everyone contributing should understand at least the basics of the many aspects of VR design. The industry is rapidly evolving and The VR Book stresses the importance of building prototypes, gathering feedback and using adjustable processes to efficiently iterate towards success. It contains extensive details on the most important aspects of VR, more than 600 applicable guidelines and over 300 additional references.

Everything is Design: The Hidden Ethics of Our Objects and Public Spaces Alan J. Reid, 2025-05-06 Ethics to put it concisely is mindful well being It is a set of standards that guides how we treat ourselves one another and the environment When we design things for public use we also communicate an ethical perspective When we use things designed for us we adopt their ethics This book synthesizes several different disciplines as they relate to design ethics and the built environment Our objects according to philosophers like Ihde Verbeek and Latour mediate our experiences with the world around us Through their designs and by extension our perceived affordances we largely comply with what our objects and spaces want us to do At the micro level the phones in our pockets command our attentive processes in order to feed an attention economy At the macro level urban planning and infrastructure can both promote inclusivity and foment violence We are deeply intertwined with the objects and spaces that have been designed for us Baked into every object process system and environment are the remnants of the designer s morals ethics values and biases Importantly this book seeks to cultivate mindfulness of the reader s interactions with their surrounding world providing them with a line of inquiry that questions areas of unethical design in their built environment and offers useful critiques and new solutions to these ethical dilemmas We often have the power to reject those things that are irresponsibly designed and unethical in nature and it is through this agency as users that we can demand better from designers developers and companies It is imperative to understand our mediated relationships with the built environment that surrounds us and the objects within it this can help explain our behaviors and empower us to make ethical decisions that serve future generations
