Marcel A. Müller

Rebuilding The Past:

Rebuilding the Past Dai Morgan Evans, Roger James, Christine Shaw, 2003 This title accompanies a ten part Discovery Channel series from October to December 2003 in which professional and amateur archaeologists construct a Roman villa from scratch using Roman methods and materials

Reconstructing Past Monastic Life: Volume 2: Diet, Landscape and Monastic Space Lluís Lloveras, Carme Rissech, Jordi Nadal, Philip Banks, 2025-07-31 Explores the organization of diet food practices water management and spatial use within historical monastic complexes and landscapes Monasticism is a form of religious life in which participants renounce worldly activities to dedicate themselves primarily to spiritual matters living in small communities subject to a set of rules and isolated from the secular world Christian monasticism which originated at the end of the 3rd century in Egypt and North Africa spread to different parts of Europe in the 6th century However it was not until the Middle Ages that monastic communities became one of the most powerful institutions in Europe Monasteries and convents played a very important role not only as centers of spirituality but also as focal points of economic technological and cultural activity This multiplicity of activities carried out alongside their religious social and political roles make monasteries spaces that can be studied from very different perspectives and that unfailingly provide essential information about our history This second of two titles originates from an international conference that took place in Barcelona in January 2024 which sought to examine different aspects related to monastic life in the past and to promote and disseminate the results obtained in the latest studies undertaken within the framework of monastic complexes and their environments These include contributions and multidisciplinary studies from archaeological bioanthropological and or documentary perspectives Specialists from different disciplines present developments on the topic of monasticism from different fields of study such as zooarchaeology bioanthropology palaeopathology archaeology history documentary disciplines archives cultural heritage etc Volume 2 focuses on diet food practices water management and the organization and use of space within monastic complexes and landscapes

Florida, 1513-1913, Past and Future George M. Chapin, 1914 Reconstructing Past Population Trends in Mediterranean Europe (3000 BC - AD 1800) John Bintliff, Kostas Sbonias, 2016-10-03 Archaeology of Populus Monograph in Archaeology of Mediterranean Landscapes Series Population trends and demographics in general are discussed through a variety of case studies based in Mediterranean Europe The range of archaeological techniques and methods of analysis includes regional field surveys artifact scatter analysis palaeoanthropology historical and documentary sources and studies of cemeteries

Reconstructing Past Monastic Life: Volume 1: Bioarchaeology, Life and Death Lluís Lloveras, Carme Rissech, Jordi Nadal, Philip Banks, 2025-07-30 Explores health and lifeways in monastic communities focusing on palaeopathological insights into well being disabilities and burial practices across various periods Monasticism is a form of religious life in which participants renounce worldly activities to dedicate themselves primarily to spiritual matters living in small communities subject to a set of rules and isolated from the secular world Christian monasticism which originated at the end of the 3rd century in Egypt and North Africa spread to different parts of Europe in the 6th century. However, it was not until the Middle Ages that monastic communities became one of the most powerful institutions in Europe. Monasteries and convents played a very important role not only as centers of spirituality but also as focal points of economic, technological, and cultural activity. This multiplicity of activities carried out alongside their religious, social, and political roles makes monasteries spaces that can be studied from very different perspectives and that unfailingly provide essential information about our history.

This first of two titles originates from an international conference that took place in Barcelona in January 2024, which sought to examine different aspects related to monastic life in the past and to promote and disseminate the results obtained in the latest studies undertaken within the framework of monastic complexes and their environments. These include contributions and multidisciplinary studies from archaeological, bioanthropological, and/or documentary perspectives. Specialists from different disciplines present developments on the topic of monasticism from different fields of study such as zooarchaeology, bioanthropology, palaeopathology, archaeology, history, documentary, disciplines, archives, cultural heritage, etc.

Volume 1 concentrates on health and lifeways within monastic communities, focusing on palaeopathological information providing insights into physical well-being and, in particular, the presence and significance of disabled individuals and evidence for long-term health and dental issues. A variety of scientific methods of analysis are applied to cemetery populations from monasteries and nunneries of different periods to examine both causes of and contributions to the death of individuals, the composition of communities, and the treatment of the dead. Studies of assemblages of faunal remains from monastic complexes consider how faunal analysis can help interpret the role of domestic species.

Sequence Analysis and Related Approaches Gilbert Ritschard, Matthias Studer, 2018-10-17. This open access book provides innovative methods and original applications of sequence analysis (SA) and related methods for analysing longitudinal data describing life trajectories such as professional careers, family paths, the succession of health statuses, or the time use. The applications, as well as the methodological contributions proposed in this book, pay special attention to the combined use of SA and other methods for longitudinal data such as event history analysis, Markov modelling, and sequence network. The methodological contributions in this book include, among others, original propositions for measuring the precarity of work trajectories, Markov-based methods for clustering sequences, fuzzy and monothetic clustering of sequences, network-based SA, joint use of SA and hidden Markov models, and of SA and survival models. The applications cover the comparison of gendered occupational trajectories in Germany, the study of the changes in women's market participation in Denmark, the study of typical day of dual earner couples in Italy, of mobility patterns in Togo, of internet addiction in Switzerland, and of the quality of employment career after a first unemployment spell. As such, this book provides a wealth of information for social scientists interested in quantitative life course analysis and all those working in sociology, demography, economics, health, psychology, social policy, and statistics.

Rebuilding the Ancestral Village Khun Eng Kuah, 2022-05-06

Originally published in 2000 this second edition was first published in 2010 This is a discussion of the relationship between one group of Singapore Chinese and their ancestral village in Fujian in China It explores the various reasons why the Singapore Chinese continue to want to maintain ties with their ancestral village and how they go about reproducing Chinese culture in the form of ancestor worship and religion in the village milieu in China It further explores the reasons why the Singapore Chinese feel morally obliged to assist their ancestral village in village reconstruction providing financial contributions to infrastructure development such as the buildings of roads bridges schools hospitals and to help with small scale industrial and retail activities Related to this is how the village cadres and teenagers through various strategies managed to encourage the Singapore Chinese to revisit their ancestral village and help with village reconstruction thereby creating a moral economy The main argument here concerns the desire of the Singapore Chinese to maintain a cultural identity and lineage continuity with their ancestral home Ethnographically this anthropological study examines two groups of Chinese separated by historical and geographical space and their coming together to re establish their cultural identity through various cultural and economic activities At the theoretical level it seeks to add a new dimension to the study of Chinese transnationalism and diaspora studies Rebuilding the Ancestral Village Khun Eng Kuah-Pearce,2010-12-01 This work illustrates the relationship between one group of Singaporean Chinese and their ancestral village in Fujian China It explores the reasons why the Singaporean Chinese continue to maintain ties with their ancestral village and how they reproduce Chinese culture through ancestor worship and religion in the ancestral village In some cases the Singaporeans feel morally obliged to assist in village reconstruction and infrastructure developments such as new roads bridges schools and hospitals Others help with small scale industrial and retail activities Meanwhile officials and villagers in the ancestral home utilize various strategies to encourage the Singaporeans to revisit their ancestral village sustain heritage ties and help enhance the moral economy This ethnographic study examines two geographically distinct groups of Chinese coming together to re establish their lineage and identity through cultural and economic activities The Past and the Future of Belgium Albert Joseph Carnoy,1919 Annual report of the Department of Railways and Canals for the past fiscal year from ... Canada.
