Repeated Financial Decisions An Experimental Analysis:

Repeated Financial Decisions Darren Duxbury, Kevin Keasey, 1999-11-15 This monograph reports the results of a large scale experimental study into the decision making process in particular into how repeated decisions on whether to buy or sell are made when trading stocks It considers how the resources and the objectives of individuals influence their behaviour the perception that success is the result of being active and aggressive in the market and how the decision making process is often minimised by repeating the same basic decision It also compares the evidence of the actual behaviour of individuals with financial theory

Multiple Criteria Problem Solving S. Zionts, 2012-12-06 The objective of this conference was to foster a healthy exchange of ideas and experience in the domain of multiple criteria problem solving This conference was an outgrowth of an earlier conference I organized with Herve Thiriez at CESA Jouy en Josas France in 1975 during my stay at the European Institute in Brussels When I re joined the State University of New York at Buffalo that year I began to search for potential sponsors for this conference Approximately one year later when the prospects began to look promising I contacted several individuals to act as an informal coordinating committee for the conference I wanted to avoid biasing the conference completely to my way of thinking The members of this committee were Jim Dyer Peter Fishburn Ralph Keeney Bernard Roy Universite de Paris IX Dauphine who was unable to participate in the conference and Milan Zeleny Though the committee did not meet per se their inputs regarding format possible participants number of participants length of the conference and so on were of great value to me in planning and organizing the conference I wish to acknowledge the contributions of this group We were most fortunate in obtaining the financial support of the European Institute for Advanced Studies in Management Brussels one of the sponsors of the Jouy en Josas conference the Office of Naval Research and the State University of New York at Buffalo

Behavioural Corporate Finance Júlio Lobão, 2016-01-14 Orthodox financial theory often ignores the role played by managers personal characteristics in their decision making processes However as anyone with experience in the business world knows managers personalities are crucial in the choices they make Indeed it should be noted that firms do not make decisions rather it is the managers who decide either as a group or individually This book explores the impact of managers psychological profiles and life experiences on their financial decisions taking the following key questions as starting points Why do they commit mistakes Why do they contract debt and issue shares How do they choose the right amount of dividends to distribute Why do they acquire other firms Why do they sometimes choose to manipulate information and to commit fraud As the book highlights having insights into managers psychology is essential to understanding their choices and predicting decisions made by competing firms
