Subcommittee on Health,2006 Research Training in Psychiatry Residency Institute of Medicine,Board on Neuroscience and Behavioral Health,Committee on Incorporating Research into Psychiatry Residency Training,2004-01-23

The number of psychiatric researchers does not seem to be keeping pace with the needs and opportunities that exist in brain and behavioral medicine An Institute of Medicine committee conducted a broad review of the state of patient oriented research training in the context of the psychiatry residency and considered the obstacles to such training and strategies for overcoming those obstacles Careful consideration was given to the demands of clinical training The committee concluded that barriers to research training span three categories regulatory institutional and personal factors Recommendations to address these issues are presented in the committee s report including calling for research literacy requirements and research training curricula tailored to psychiatry residency programs of various sizes The roles of senior investigators and departmental leadership are emphasized in the report as is the importance of longitudinal training e g from medical school through residency and fellowship As there appears to be great interest among numerous stakeholders and a need for better tracking data an overarching recommendation calls for the establishment of a national body to coordinate and evaluate the progress of research training in psychiatry

Social Research in Health and Illness Constantinou N. Phellas,Costas S. Constantinou,2017-08-15 Social Research in Health and Illness offers a theoretically informed guide to practising the key social research methods in investigating health and illness Examining both methods and methodology the authors explore the importance of selecting the appropriate research method for the project in question demonstrating that researchers do not simply apply a set of neutral techniques to the issues that they investigate but take part in a dynamic reflective engagement with social and cultural worlds in a process of continual learning With its application of a variety of research methods to concrete cases this book provides a sociology of specific health conditions thus rendering them more understandable whilst clarifying the nature of research concepts approaches methods and methodologies by demonstrating their use in real life settings Drawing on case studies involving a range of health conditions including mental illness HIV diabetes kidney disease Alzheimer s disease heart disease breast cancer thalassaemia and multiple sclerosis the authors examine a range of methodological issues exploring the use of focus groups observation data archives interviews and surveys while also considering questions of ethics and analysis A comprehensive and practical examination of research methods in use in a defined field of social scientific enquiry this volume is essential reading for scholars graduate students and healthcare professionals with interests in conducting qualitative and quantitative research in the fields of health and medicine
