Court of Appeal (6th Appellate District). Records and Briefs California (State).*, Court of Appeals: State of New York, The Infanticidal Logic of Evolution and Culture A. Samuel Kimball, 2007 This book argues that because existence costs the two words are cognates any living thing must economize shift more of its energy costs onto the world including other living things than its competitors are able to that to economize is therefore to engage in exchanges that are sacrificial at their core and that such economization is infanticidal in its ultimate implications A Samuel Kimball is Associate Professor of English at the University of North Florida Supreme Court, Appellate Division- First Department, Evolving Standards of Decency Mary Welek Atwell, 2004 The Supreme Court has looked to evolving standards of decency in determining whether the death penalty violates the Eighth Amendment to the Constitution which prohibits cruel and unusual punishment Evolving Standards of Decency examines the ways in which popular culture portrays the death penalty By analyzing literature and film Atwell argues that capital punishment becomes much more complex when both offenders and victims are presented as fully developed individuals Numerous books and films from the last several decades expose flaws in the criminal justice system and provide audiences with stories that raise questions about race class and actual innocence in the administration of the ultimate punishment Although most people will not read legal briefs supporting or challenging the death penalty many will see films or read novels that raise issues about its fairness Themes and images gathered through popular culture may ultimately influence whether Americans continue to believe that capital punishment conforms to their evolving standards of decency and justice Those studying justice issues corrections or capital punishment will find this an accessible and provocative work that places the stories read in novels or seen in movies in the context of the legal system that has the power of life and death
