John F. Barber, 2014-12-09 Best known for his novel Trout Fishing in America American writer Richard Gary Brautigan 1935-1984 published eleven novels ten poetry collections and two story collections as well as five volumes of collected work several nonfiction essays and a record album of spoken voice recordings. Brautigan's idiosyncratic style and humor caused him to be identified with the counterculture movement of the 1960s. The authors of many of these 32 essays knew Brautigan personally and professionally others came to know and respect him through a cultivated connection with his writings. The essays many of which are new others of which were published in obscure journals combine personal remembrance of the man and critical appraisal of his still controversial works. Includes previously unpublished photographs and artworks.

Knowing Fear Jason Colavito, 2007-11-26 Tracing the development of horror entertainment since the late 18th century this study argues that scientific discovery technological progress and knowledge in general have played an unparalleled role in influencing the evolution of horror. Throughout its many subgenres biological horror cosmic horror and others and formats film literature comics horror records humanity's uneasy relationship with its own ability to reason understand and learn. The text first outlines a loose framework defining several distinct periods in horror development then explores each period sequentially by looking at the scientific and cultural background of the period its expression in horror literature and its expression in horror visual and performing arts. When Brautigan took his own life in September of 1984 his close friends and network of artists and writers were devastated though not entirely surprised. To many Brautigan was shrouded in enigma erratic and unpredictable in his habits and presentation. But his career was formidable an inspiration to young writers like Hjortsberg trying to get their start. Brautigan's career wove its way through both the Beat influenced San Francisco Renaissance in the 1950s and the Flower Power hippie movement of the 1960s while he never claimed direct artistic involvement with either period. Jubilee Hitchhiker also delves deeply into the spirited times in which he lived. As Hjortsberg guides us through his search to uncover Brautigan as a man the reader is pulled deeply into the writer's world. Ultimately this is a work that seeks to connect the Brautigan known to his fans.

The Postmodern Short Story Farhat Itekharrudin, Joseph Boyden, Mary Rohrberger, Jaie Claudet, 2003-12-30 Short stories are usually defined in terms of characteristics of modernism in which the story begins in the middle develops according to a truncated plot and ends with an epiphany This approach tends to ignore postmodernism a movement often characterized by a negation of objective reality where plots are seemingly abandoned surfaces are extraordinary and symbols turn inward on themselves This book examines postmodern forms and characteristic themes by analyzing a group of short stories that make use of postmodern narrative strategies including nonfictional fiction gender profiling and death as an image The volume begins with a discussion of the blurred lines between fiction and nonfiction in the short story and imaginative personal essay It then looks at the role of women in works by such authors as Sandra Cisneros Leslie Marmon Silko Joyce Carol Oates and Lorrie Moore This is followed by a section of chapters on postmodern masculinity and short fiction The next section focuses on death as an image and theme in works by Richard Ford Richard Brautigan and James Joyce The final set of chapters considers postmodern short fiction from South Africa and Canada

Electromagnetic and Optical Pulse Propagation 2 Kurt E. Oughstun, 2010-07-23 Electromagnetic Optical Pulse Propagation presents a detailed systematic treatment of the time domain electromagnetics with application to the propagation of transient electromagnetic fields including ultrawideband signals and ultrashort pulses in homogeneous isotropic media which exhibit both temporal frequency dispersion and attenuation The development is mathematically rigorous with strict adherence to the fundamental physical principle of causality Approximation methods are based upon mathematically well defined asymptotic techniques that are based upon the saddle point method A detailed description is given of the asymptotic expansions used Meaningful exercises are given throughout the text to help the reader s understanding of the material making the book a useful graduate level text in electromagnetic wave theory for both physics electrical engineering and materials science programs Both students and researchers alike will obtain a better understanding of time domain electromagnetics as it applies to electromagnetic radiation and wave propagation theory with applications to ground and foliage penetrating radar medical imaging communications and the health and safety issues associated with ultrawideband pulsed fields Volume 2 presents a detailed asymptotic description of plane wave pulse propagation in dielectric conducting and semiconducting materials as described by the classical Lorentz model of dielectric resonance the Rocard Powles Debys model of orientational polarization and the Drude model of metals The rigorous description of the signal velocity of a pulse in a dispersive material is presented in connection with the question of superluminal pulse propagation
