Francis Fukuyama announced the End of History anti capitalist demonstrators at Seattle and elsewhere have helped such as this were no utopian fantasies and that capitalism was just as much a historical mode of production no more natural and certainly no less contradictory than were the feudal and slave modes which proceeded it Paul Blackledge opens this study with a defence of the Marxist approach to the study of history against what he argues as being the naive empiricism of traditional historians and the relativism of the postmodernists He moves on to outline Marx and Engels analyses of concrete historical processes and their critiques of the alternative historiographic methodologies of their contemporaries He then discusses neglected historical works produced by Marxists in the half century or so after Marx and Engels deaths Two central chapters survey recent Marxist debates on first the nature of modes of productions including slave feudal and tributary systems and the revolutionary transitions between them and second the methodological debate over the issue of structure and agency in the movement of history Finally he shows the political relevance of these debates through a both the limits and the lasting significance of his ideas Structured around three obstacles to freedom poverty corruption and
