

PHYSICAL AND CHEMICAL PROPERTIES

Lab Investigation

DIRECTIONS: Students will conduct an investigation to determine if each of the products mixed together cause a physical or a chemical reaction. Remember, physical properties are those that cannot alter the substance under various circumstances. A chemical property is evidence that a substance reacts with another substance. Complete the following steps and questions to complete your lab report.

MATERIALS: Vinegar, 100ml Beaker, Matches, Lighter, Pencil, Paper, Iodine, Drops, Paper Plate, Glass, Labeled Cups, Sugar, Cornstarch, Baking Soda

STEP #1: Label your four cups with 1. Cornstarch, 2. Salt, 3. Sugar, 4. Baking Soda

STEP #2: Observe the physical appearance of the substances in the cup. Record your observations.

STEP #3 (Water): Add one spoonful of sugar in 20 ml. of water. Stir the two substances together. Observe the mixture. Record how long it takes the solution to dissolve. Wash out your beaker and perform the same method for cornstarch, salt and baking soda.

STEP #4 (Vinegar): Mix a half spoonful of sugar in 20 ml. of vinegar. Record your observations and record how long it takes to see a change. Wash out your beaker and perform the same method for cornstarch, salt and baking soda.

STEP #5 (Iodine): Place one gram of sugar (about the size of a penny) and place one-two drops of iodine on the sugar. Record your observations and record how long it takes to see a change. Wash your materials and perform the same method for cornstarch, salt and baking soda.

STEP #6 (Flammability): Place your candle in a piece of playdough to help it stand firm. Light your candle and drop a small pinch of sugar onto the open flame. Watch to see if there is a flash point that will allow burning to happen. If the flame flares up, the test is positive. Record your observations. Clean your materials but do not throw away your playdough.
