Transforming Education and Development Policies for Pastoralist Communities in Kenya Ibrahim Oanda Ogachi, 2011 This study is a contribution towards exploring alternative but sustainable education policies for pastoralist societies and sets out to explore how pastoralist IKSs Indigenous Knowledge Systems can be integrated or used as an entry point to provide formal schooling to pastoralist communities in Kenya Pastoralists constitute the majority of the socially and economically vulnerable groups in the country Children among pastoralist communities face detrimental hardships that compromise their growth and development One of these hardships is the imposition of an education and development paradigm that is irrelevant to their existence and which compounds their problems This study therefore sought to explore how through better government policies the indigenous knowledge IK of pastoralists could be integrated into the curriculum of formal schooling Specifically the study discusses the following issues Gaps in policies for schooling provision for pastoralist groups with particular reference to the content of the curriculum and methods of delivery Aspects of pastoralist IKS that can be integrated into the context of national education policy to enrich their schooling within and General recommendations regarding the use of participatory and social engineering approaches in designing education and development policies affecting pastoralist communities in Kenya Hard Lessons ,1998-01-01 Education is a basic condition for economic and social development Working in conjunction with the National Primary Education Commission the World Bank supported consultations among teachers parents educational administrators and community leaders to develop a strong foundation for primary education in Nigeria The innovative work documented in this publication illustrates the potential not only for partnership between the users and providers of primary education but also between the World Bank and its clients

Endogenous Development Chiku Malunga, Susan Holcombe, 2017-10-02 Western ideas worldviews actors tools models and frameworks have long dominated development theory and practice in Africa The resulting development interventions are too rarely locally rooted locally driven or resonant with local context At the same time theories and practices from developing countries rarely travel to the Western agencies dominating development undermining the possibility of a beneficial synergy that could be obtained from the best of both worlds There are many reasons why the experiences of locally driven development are not communicated back to global development actors including but not limited to the marginal role of Southern voices in global forums This volume gives a platform to authentic African voices and non African collaborators to explore what endogenous development means how it can be implemented and how an endogenous development approach can shape local national and global policies This book was originally published as a special issue of Development in Practice

Handbook of the Sociology of Gender Janet Saltzman Chafetz, 2006-11-22 During the past three decades feminist scholars have successfully demonstrated the ubiquity and omnirelevance of gender as a sociocultural construction in virtually all human collectivities past and present Intrapsychic interactional and collective social processes are gendered as are micro meso and macro social structures Gender shapes and is shaped in all arenas of social life from the most mundane practices of everyday life to those of the most powerful corporate actors Contemporary understandings of gender emanate from a large community of primarily feminist scholars that spans the gamut of learned disciplines and also includes non academic activist thinkers However while incorporating some cross disciplinary material this volume focuses specifically on sociological theories and research concerning gender which are discussed across the full array of social processes structures and institutions As editor I have explicitly tried to shape the contributions to this volume along several lines that reflect my long standing views about sociology in general and gender sociology in particular First I asked authors to include cross national and historical material as much as possible This request reflects my belief that understanding and evaluating the here and now and working realistically for a better future can only be accomplished from a comparative perspective Too often American sociology has been both tempero and ethnocentric Second I have asked authors to be sensitive to within gender differences along class racial ethnic sexual preference and age cohort lines

Gender Trouble Makers Jennifer Rothchild, 2007-05-07 International development efforts aimed at improving girls lives and education have been well intended somewhat effective but ultimately short sighted and incomplete This is because international development efforts often operate under a reductive understanding of the term gender and how it influences the lives of girls and boys Gender is more commonly conceived by international efforts as characteristics which are ascribed to girls as norms for behaviour In particular the analysis in Gender Trouble Makers focuses on the social constructions of gender and the ways in which gender was reinforced and maintained through a case study in rural Nepal In developing countries like Nepal promoting access to and participation in existing formal education programme is clearly necessary but it is not in itself sufficient to transform

Wiseman,2009-04-03 Investigates the often controversial relationship between gender equality and education from international and comparative perspectives This volume also investigates whether gender equality in education is really being achieved in schools around the world or not The World Bank in a Changing World Ibrahim F.I. Shihata,James D. Wolfensohn,2021-10-25 Guide to Indian Periodical Literature ,1999 Education Inputs in Uganda Harriet Nannyonjo,2007-01-01 This report is based on a study prompted by the need for improved effectiveness in the use of education resources in Uganda Uganda s problem with increasing resource constraints for education is common in many developing countries and the lessons learned in this study may be of broad interest Currently Uganda allocates over 31 percent of its discretionary recurrent expenditure to education and 67 percent of this is allocated to primary education Given increasing pressures on the budgets there is need to implement strategies focusing on those inputs most likely to improve student learning A major impediment to rational decision making in this area is lack of knowledge about what interventions work best and under what circumstances Without this knowledge Government may continue spending scarce resources on inputs that may not directly contribute to student learning achievement Population Education Accessions List ,1996
