Seeing Things Television In An Age Of Uncertainty:

Seeing Things John Ellis, Television the author argues responds to two powerful desires of our age it makes us witnesses of often traumatic events and it tries and fails to provide us with narratives that make sense of the world The author makes sense of modern television both by exploring its processes and in terms of its dynamic relationships with the cultures that provide it with raw material Television he proposes offers us multiple ways of understanding the world yet does not arbitrate between them He explores this process as one of working through whereby television news takes in the chaos and conflict of the world and subsequent programmes of all kinds offer diverse ways of unravelling its confusions from the psychobabble of talk shows to the open narratives of soaps documentaries and dramas By means of this working through problems are exhausted rather than resolved The author demonstrates how television's function in its new era is no longer that of building consensus rather it uses all the means at its disposal including sophisticated computer graphics to mediate between conflicting approaches to our age of uncertainty

Locating Television Anna Cristina Perterra, Graeme Turner, 2013 Locating Television Zones of Consumption takes an important next step for television studies and addresses the question of what is television now Television Jeremy G. Butler, 2012-02-20 For nearly two decades Television Critical Methods and Applications has served as the foremost guide to television studies. Designed for the television studies course in communication and media studies curricula, Television explains in depth how television programs and commercials are made and how they function as producers of meaning. Author Jeremy G. Butler shows the ways in which camera style, lighting, set design, editing, and sound combine to produce meanings that viewers take away from their television experience. He supplies students with a whole toolbox of implements to disassemble television and read between the lines, teaching them to incorporate critical thinking into their own television viewing. The fourth edition builds upon the pedagogy of previous editions to best accommodate current modes of understanding and teaching television. Highlights of the fourth edition include a new chapter and part organization to reflect the current approach to teaching television with greatly expanded methods and theories; chapters on an entirely new chapter on modes of production and their impact on what you see on the screen; discussions integrated throughout on the latest developments in television, such as convergence with other media such as material on transmedia storytelling and YouTube's impact on video distribution. Over three hundred printed illustrations, including new and better quality frame grabs of recent television shows and commercials. A companion website featuring color frame grabs, a glossary, flash cards, and editing and sound exercises for students, as well as PowerPoint presentations, sample syllabi, and other materials for instructors. Links to online videos that support examples in the text are also provided. With its distinctive approach to examining television, Television is appropriate for courses in television studies, media criticism, and general critical studies.

Docudrama on European Television Tobias Ebbrecht-Hartmann, Derek Paget, 2016-07-12 This book explores docudrama as a creative response to troubled times. With generic characteristics formed via traditions in theatre as well as film and with claims to fact underscored by investigative journalism, television docudrama examines key events and personalities in unfolding national histories. Post-Fall of the Berlin Wall, docudrama has become a means for nations to work through traumatic experiences both within national borders and Europe-wide. In this regard, it is an important genre for television networks as they attempt to make sense of complex current events. These authors offer a template for further study and point towards ways in which European television cultures beyond those discussed here might be considered in the future.

Television Journalism Stephen Cushion, 2011-11-10 Amidst the glut of studies on new media and the news, the enduring medium of television finally gets the attention it deserves. Cushion brings television news back into perfect focus in a book that offers historical depth, geographical breadth, empirical analysis, and above all, political significance. Through an interrogation of the dynamics of and relations between regulation, ownership, the working practices of journalism, and the news audience, Cushion makes a clear case for why and how television news should be firmly positioned in the public interest. It should be required reading for anyone concerned with news and journalism. Natalie Fenton, Goldsmiths University of London. An admirably ambitious synthesis of journalism scholarship and journalism practice, providing a comprehensive resource of historical analysis contemporary trends and key data Stewart Purvis City University and former CEO of ITN Despite the democratic promise of new media television journalism remains the most viewed valued and trusted source of information in many countries around the world Comparing patterns of ownership policy and regulation this book explores how different environments have historically shaped contemporary trends in television journalism internationally Informed by original research Television Journalism lays bare the implications of market forces public service interventions and regulatory shifts in television journalism s changing production practices news values and audience expectations Accessibly written and packed with topical references this authoritative account offers fresh insights into the past present and future of journalism making it a necessary point of reference for upper level undergraduates researchers and academics in broadcasting journalism mass communication and media studies

A new genre for television? Justin Hardy, 2025-05-27 In A New Genre for Television filmmaker Justin Hardy argues the dramatised history documentaries broadcast by British public service channels in the 2000s constituted a distinct television genre Offering a vital distinction between docudramas and drama documentaries Hardy contributes to the field of television history through exclusive interviews with key figures from BBC and Channel 4 many of whom have never been publicly interviewed before and envisions a future model for the portrayal of national histories on screen
