

Speech Acts in Political Speeches

Suhair Safwat Mohammed Hashim
(School of Languages, University of Sulaimani, Iraq)

Abstract: The study investigates the role of language in the communication and interpretation of intentions by examining selected political speeches of John Kerry in Presidential Campaign in 2004 and George Bush-Inaugural address in 2001 since they have the same purposes as pieces of discourse with specific goals. Hence, the study focused on the pragmatic functions of locution, illocutionary and perlocutionary acts of the speeches.

Twenty sentences were selected from the two speeches. The findings show that the overall relative frequency percentages for the selected speeches are: commissive 40%, assertive 35%, directive 20%, and expressive 5%. The results show that Kerry relied more on sentences that performed commissive acts than other speech acts since he committed to some future actions, and he promised to make the world fit the words. Bush used sentences with assertive acts more than other speech acts since the assertive has a truth value which can only enhance the effect of the asserted proposition. Hence, the data are characterized by a preponderance of commissive, assertive and directive acts that are mostly used as mobilization strategies, especially in political campaigns, where it is essential for candidates to persuade their listeners to win elections.

Politicians communicate directly with the general public in order to convince them of their programs or ideas. Usually, the speakers would promote about their self and talk about their potency to be a good leader with all their goals to convince the hearer. In this area, the speech act analysis of the political speeches provides the understanding that political leaders perform various acts through their speeches.

Key words: speech acts theory, political discourse, political speeches

1. Introduction

Political language deals with the use of power to organize people's mind and opinion. It is an instrument used to control the society in general. Speech heard by a lot of people, every person has different interpretations that can influence the success of the candidates. Political speech can be seen as a means of establishing and maintaining social relationships, expressing feelings, and selling ideas, policies and programmes in any society. In pragmatics aspect, this means Speech Act Theory; speech act performed by particular word often depends on the speaker's intention and the context in which the word uttered.

This paper presents a speech acts analysis of two political speeches in presidential campaign. It tries to find the meaning of utterances based on the context of the speaker.

The Guardians of Concepts Martina Steber,2023-01-13 Since 1945 what conservative means has troubled intellectuals politicians and parties in the United Kingdom and West Germany In Britain conservatism was an accepted term of the political vocabulary denoting a particular tradition of political thought and practice In West Germany by contrast conservatism was a difficult concept for the young democracy to swallow It carried a heavy antiliberal and antidemocratic burden and led people to question whether there was a place for conservatism within democratic culture after all The Guardians of Concepts scrutinizes the debates about conservatism in the UK and the Federal Republic of Germany from the late 1940s to the early 1980s Informed by historical semantics it conceives of conservatism as a flexible linguistic structure and shows the importance of language for the self understanding of many conservatives who not by chance have regarded themselves as the guardians of concepts The intense national and transnational debates about the meaning of conservatism had far reaching consequences and continue to influence politics today
